There is increasing recognition around the world that the human development that is required to achieve the goals of the 21st century is not only a matter of economic growth, but also of social and environmental sustainability. The concept of sustainable development has been defined as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs (Brundtland, 1987). This concept has been widely accepted and has become a guiding principle for many governments and organizations.
