Picturing Animals in Britain, 1750-1850 Diana Donald, 2007-01-01 From fine art paintings by such artists as Stubbs and Landseer to zoological illustrations and popular prints a vast array of animal images was created in Britain during the century from 1750 to 1850 This highly original book investigates the rich meanings of these visual representations as well as the ways in which animals were actually used and abused What Diana Donald discovers in this fascinating study is a deep and unresolved ambivalence that lies at the heart of human attitudes toward animals The author brings to light dichotomies in human thinking about animals throughout this key period awestruck with the beauty and spirit of wild animals people nevertheless desired to capture and tame them the belief that other species are inferior was firmly held yet at the same time animals in stories and fables were given human attributes though laws against animal cruelty were introduced the overworking of horses and the allure of sport hunting persisted Animals are central in cultural history Donald concludes and compelling questions about them then and now remain unanswered Catalogue of the Historical Library of M.D. Gilman ... M. Erneling, David M. Johnson, 2005-01-13 What holds together the various fields that are supposed to constitute the general intellectual discipline that people now call cognitive science In this book Erneling and Johnson identify two problems with defining this discipline First some theorists identify the common subject matter as the mind but scientists and philosophers have not been able to agree on any single satisfactory answer to the question of what the mind is Second those who speculate about the general characteristics that belong to cognitive science tend to assume that all the particular fields falling under the rubric psychology linguistics biology and so on are of roughly equal value in their ability to shed light on the nature of mind This book argues that all the cognitive science disciplines are not equally able to provide answers to ontological questions about the mind but rather that only neurophysiology and cultural psychology are suited to answer these questions. However, since the cultural account of mind has long been ignored in favor of the neurophysiological account, Erneling and Johnson bring together contributions that focus especially on different versions of the cultural account of the mind.

Primate Ecology and Conservation: Volume 2 International Primatological Society. Congress, 1986-08-21. The survival of primates in their natural habitats is of growing concern to primatologists, ecologists, and conservationists. In this volume, research on feeding behaviour, nutrition, and digestive physiology from captive and wild primates is presented. Correlates of the habitat and social organisation are discussed and then integrated with the pressing problem of how to conserve primates. Broad issues of confrontation between human and non-human primate populations are considered in the light of conflicting priorities for land use and development. The increased knowledge of what primates require for their survival is applied to problems of captive propagation as a means of reducing dependence on exploiting wild populations. The papers presented in this volume will stimulate discussion between ecologists, conservationists, and those concerned with land use management to establish realistic policies for primate conservation. Nonhuman Primates in Biomedical Research, 1998-07-24. This volume and its companion Nonhuman Primates in Biomedical Research: Biology and Management represent the most comprehensive publications of their type on nonhuman primates. This volume addresses the diseases of nonhuman primates with an emphasis on the etiological factors, clinical signs, diagnostic pathology, therapy, and management. Its companion volume serves as a general reference for those who provide care for these animals and for those who use them in biomedical research.

The History of the Earth and Animated Nature Oliver Goldsmith, 1810. Clinical Veterinary Toxicology - E-Book Konnie Plumlee, 2003-12-10. This book covers all aspects of toxicology, including toxic diseases of large animals, small animals, and exotic pets. It provides key information on how poisons affect the body, how the body responds to a foreign substance, how poisonings are diagnosed, and how poisonings are treated. Coverage includes every organ system of every species of animal, with details on each body system's susceptibility to poison. Poisons affect animals differently depending on species, breed, age, gender, health status, and reproductive status. This resource addresses these differences, allowing the veterinarian to determine the class of toxicant, the mechanism of action, and the proper course of treatment. If confronted with an unknown poison, the information in this book will assist the veterinarian in formulating a list of potential poisons based on the clinical signs that the animal is exhibiting and in choosing the appropriate tests to narrow the list to one or a few possible poisons. Most comprehensive toxicology book available. Written in a user-friendly style that makes it easy to master the content. Covers poisonings in both large and small domestic animals. The Principles of Toxicology section provides comprehensive coverage of concepts, terminology, toxicokinetics, treatments, and regulatory information. The Manifestations of Toxicoses section is devoted to differentiating between poisons based on lesions and clinical signs. The Classes of Toxicants section offers detailed information on each poison, including sources, risk factors, pathophysiology, clinical signs, and lesions.
