Department web pages Human Biodiversity Jonathan M. Marks, 2001 Are humans unique This simple question at the very heart of the hybrid field of biological anthropology poses one of the false dichotomies with a stereotypical humanist answering in the affirmative and a stereotypical scientist answering in the negative The study of human biology is different from the study of the biology of other species In the simplest terms people's lives and welfare may depend upon it in a sense that they may not depend on the study of other scientific subjects Where science is used to validate ideas four out of five scientists preferring a brand of cigarettes or toothpaste there is a tendency to accept the judgment as authoritative without asking the kinds of questions we might ask of other citizens pronouncements In Human Biodiversity Marks has attempted to distill from a centuries long debate what has been learned and remains to be learned about the biological differences within and among human groups His is the first such attempt by an anthropologist in years for genetics has undermined the fundamental assumptions of racial taxonomy The history of those assumptions from Linnaeus to the recent past the history of other more useful assumptions that derive from Buffon and have reemerged to account for genetic variation are the poles of Marks's exploration Human Evolutionary Biology Michael P. Muehlenbein, 2010-07-29 Wide ranging and inclusive this text provides an invaluable review of an expansive selection of topics in human evolution variation and adaptability for professionals and students in biological anthropology evolutionary biology medical sciences and psychology The chapters are organized around four broad themes with sections devoted to phenotypic and genetic variation within and between human populations reproductive physiology and behavior growth and development and human health from evolutionary and ecological perspectives An introductory section provides readers with the historical theoretical and methodological foundations needed to understand the more complex ideas presented later Two hundred discussion questions provide starting points for class debate and assignments to test student understanding Osteometric Assessment of 20th Century Skeletons from Thailand and Hong Kong Christopher A. King, 1997-10 Cranial and postcranial research on East and Southeast Asians has shown population variability between and within these two regions Moreover as populations vary by sex sex differences vary by population The purpose of this study is to provide the first descriptive and comparative analysis of two recently curated samples of complete documented contemporary skeletons from Thailand N 104 and Hong Kong N 94 that have not been previously studied Sex differences reveal Hong Kong males and females as larger but less dimorphic than Thais Stepwise discriminant function analysis of the Thai humerus and femur allowed 94% 96% sex classification accuracy In conclusion this research has increased our knowledge of sex and population differences in Asia and has important applications to demographic and medicolegal investigations
