The Last Tosa Sandy Kita, 1999-03-01 Iwasa Katsumochi Matabei 1578 1650 is one of the most controversial figures in Japanese art history For more than half a century historians have argued over Matabei's role in Japanese art Was he as he asserted The Last Tosa the school of painters who specialized in Yamato e a kind of classical courtly painting or as others characterized him The Founder of Ukiyo e the style of painting associated with the urban commoner class In this highly original and convincing study Matabei emerges as both an artist in whose work can be seen elements of both Yamato e and Ukiyo e Extending its analysis beyond the individual artist The Last Tosa examines the trends and artistic developments of a transitional period and makes heretofore unexamined connections between the world of the aristocrat and the merchant as well as the two artistic schools that reflected their tastes It addresses these larger issues by identifying Matabei as a member of a social group known as machishu Excerpts from noblemen's diaries an investigation of the etymology of machishu and an analysis of art by its members indicate that machishu included both commoners and gentry thus revealing a rich tradition of egalitarianism an important departure from the conventionally held belief that seventeenth century Japan's urban society was rigidly stratified The Last Tosa provides an exhaustive study of Matabei's paintings including all his important works and key attributions Translations of all documents available on Matabei are given in particular his travel diary a unique source the only known example of such a text by a seventeenth century classical painter With its fusion of cultural history with political social and economic history this sophisticated study will appeal to not only art historians but also to students of history anthropology and culture studies interested in questions of group identity and the political uses of culture

genre of ukiyo e pictures of the floating world offers a new approach to understanding the production and reception of print culture in early modern Japan. It provides a corrective to the perception that the ukiyo e tradition was the product of the creative talents of individual artists, revealing instead the many identities that made and disseminated printed work. Julie Nelson Davis demonstrates by way of examples from the later eighteenth century that this popular genre was the result of an exchange among publishers, designers, writers, carvers, printers, patrons, buyers, and readers. By recasting these works as examples of a network of commercial and artistic cooperation, she offers a nuanced view of the complexity of this tradition and expands our understanding of the dynamic processes of production, reception, and intention in floating world print culture. Four case studies give evidence of what constituted modes of collaboration among artistic producers in the period. In each case, Davis explores a different configuration of collaboration: that between a teacher and a student, two painters and their publishers, a designer and a publisher, and a writer and an illustrator. Each investigates a mode of partnership through a single work: a specially commissioned print, a lavishly illustrated album, a printed handscroll, and an inexpensive illustrated novel. These case studies explore the diversity of printed things in the period, ranging from expensive works made for a select circle of connoisseurs to those meant to be sold at a modest price to a large audience. They take up familiar subjects from the floating world: connoisseurship, beauty, sex, and humor, and explore multiple dimensions of inquiry vital to that dynamic culture: the status of art, the evaluation of beauty, the representation of sexuality, and the tension between mind and body. Where earlier studies of woodblock prints have tended to focus on the individual artist, Partners in Print takes the subject a major step forward to a richer picture of the creative process. Placing these works in their period context not only reveals an aesthetic network responsive to and shaped by the desires of consumers in a specific place and time but also contributes to a larger discussion about the role of art and the place of the material text in the early modern world.
