

LESSON 1

D major and A major, scales in two octaves

In Grade 1 Theory we learnt the scales of C, G and F major.

In Grade 2 Theory, the first new scale we learn is D major.

If we take the last four notes of the G major scale, we can begin to construct D major.

Can you remember the sequence of tones and semitones in a major scale?

They are:

TTSTTTS

Using this sequence, we can work out the remaining notes of the scale.

- a tone above G is A (remember a tone is two semitones)
- a tone above A is B
- a tone above B is C $\sharp$ (remember that if we are going 'up' then this is the sharp direction)
- a semitone above C $\sharp$ is D

So, the completed scale is:

Note that this scale has two sharps: F $\sharp$ and C $\sharp$

The key signature for D major therefore looks like this:

and in the bass clef:

Remember you need to be able to write the D major scale both with a key signature and with accidentals.
