Do Investment Regulations Compromise Pension Fund Performance? Palle Subrahmanya Srinivas, Juan Yermo, 1999-01-01 Draconian regulations have created distortions in asset management limited opportunities for diversification and as a consequence have hampered the performance of pension funds This volume shows that the return to retirement assets expected replacement rates and hence the net welfare gain from pension reform is lower under a draconian regulatory framework than under a more liberal pension fund investment regime. Important policy conclusions of the paper are that existing regulatory regimes should be liberalized as soon as possible to allow pension fund investments in a wider array of financial instruments and that regulations should require evaluation of pension fund performance against market benchmarks as opposed to exclusive focus on comparisons with industry averages. The paper also suggests a review of the current structure of the private pension fund industry in Latin America and an evaluation against alternatives in the light of actual performance experience.

Data Envelopment Analysis Joe Zhu, 2016-03-22 This handbook compiles state of the art empirical studies and applications using Data Envelopment Analysis (DEA). It includes a collection of 18 chapters written by DEA experts. Chapter 1 examines the performance of CEOs of U.S. banks and thrifts. Chapter 2 describes the network operational structure of transportation organizations and the relative network data envelopment analysis model. Chapter 3 demonstrates how to use different types of DEA models to compute total factor energy efficiency scores with an application to energy efficiency. In chapter 4 the authors explore the impact of incorporating customers willingness to pay for service quality in benchmarking models on cost efficiency of distribution networks and chapter 5 provides a brief review of previous applications of DEA to the professional baseball industry followed by two detailed applications to Major League Baseball. Chapter 6 examines efficiency and productivity of U.S. property liability P.L. insurers using DEA while chapter 7 presents a two stage network DEA model that decomposes the overall efficiency of a decision making unit into two components. Chapter 8 presents a review of the literature of DEA models for the performance assessment of mutual funds and chapter 9 discusses the management strategies formulation of the international tourist hotel industry in Taiwan. Chapter 10 presents a novel use of the two stage network DEA to evaluate sustainable product design performances. In chapter 11 authors highlight limitations of some DEA environmental efficiency models and chapter 12 reviews applications of DEA in secondary and tertiary education. Chapter 13 measures the relative performance of New York State school districts in the 2011-2012 academic year. Chapter 14 provides an introductory prelude to chapters 15 and 16 which both provide detailed applications of DEA in marketing. Chapter 17 then shows how to decompose a new total factor productivity index that satisfies all economically relevant axioms from index theory with an application to U.S. agriculture. Finally chapter 18 presents a unique study that conducts a DEA research front analysis applying a network clustering method to group the DEA literature over the period 2000 to 2014.
