The vehicle's occupant air bags are designed to protect you and your passengers. However, the SRS is designed to be used in the seating area and is not designed to:

• Protect you when you are not in the correct seating area. When the side air bags are moved with the adjustment or they become not properly adjusted relative to the chest and back of the passenger, the front seat passenger will not be protected in the event of a crash.

• Move from seating position when the vehicle is in motion. When the side air bags are moved from their designed seating position in the front seat, the side air bags will not move with the vehicle's motion.

• Be used in a manner that is not intended. If the vehicle is not properly maintained, the side air bags will not move with the vehicle's motion. The side air bags will not move with the vehicle's motion.
