1996 Cohesion Economic First Report Social:

Community Economic Development Graham Haughton, 2013-12-16 This important book examines the ways in which community economic development can contribute to local and regional regeneration. It presents a unique overview of the state of contemporary British practice in this important policy area and provides a series of fresh theoretical, methodological and empirical insights which help us to understand ways in which communities are facing up to the challenges of devising and bringing about their own revitalisation. Community Economic Development is underpinned by the argument that much conventional regeneration work represents at best a short term fix rather than a long term sustainable solution to the problems of socially excluded communities. The emphasis of the book is largely on the British experience with contributions from a rich mix of new and established academics and practitioners. 21st Century Cooperation Antoni

Estevadeordal, Louis Goodman, 2017-05-18 This edited volume explains the importance of regional public goods (RPGs) for sustainable development and shows why they are particularly important in the context of 21st century international relations. By presenting a new and original data set and by presenting original essays by renowned scholars, this book lays the foundation for what will become an increasingly important focus for both economic development and international relations as well as for their intersection. The volume contains four parts. The first introduces the core issues and concepts that are explored throughout the book as well as a new and original data set on RPGs. The second part further develops specific concepts important for understanding 21st century RPGs: regional leadership, alliances, networks and outcomes. The third examines how cooperation takes place worldwide for a range of important RPGs. Finally, the fourth part discusses how public goods are produced in specific regions, stressing that each region has a distinct context and that these contexts overlap in a decentered, multiplex manner. Global economic cooperation will be different in the 21st century and this volume will be of interest to students and scholars of global governance, economic development, international political economy, sustainable development and comparative regionalism. Integrating Human Health into Urban and Transport Planning Mark

Nieuwenhuijsen, Haneen Khreis, 2018-07-13 This volume brings together the world's leading experts on urban and transport planning, environmental exposures, physical activity, health and health impact assessment to discuss challenges and solutions in cities. The book provides a conceptual framework and work program for actions and outlines future research needs. It presents the current evidence base, the benefits of and numerous case studies on integrating health and the environment into urban development and transport planning. Within cities, there is a considerable variation in the levels of environmental exposures such as ambient air pollution, noise and temperature, green space availability and physical activity. Many of these exposures and their adverse health impacts are related to and are being exacerbated by urban and transport planning and policy. Emerging research suggests that urban and transport planning indicators such as road network, distance to major roads, traffic density, household density, industry and natural and green space can explain a large proportion of the variability in environmental exposures and therefore represent important and highly modifiable factors The urban environment is a complex interlinked system Decision makers need not only better data on the complexity of factors in environmental and developmental processes affecting human health but also an enhanced understanding of the linkages between these factors and health effects to determine at which level to target their actions most effectively In recent years there also has been a shift from trying to change at the national level to more comprehensive and ambitious actions being developed and implemented at the regional and local levels Cities have come to the forefront of providing solutions for environmental issues such as climate change which has co benefits for health but yet need better knowledge for wider health centric action This book provides the latest and most up to date information and studies for academics and practitioners alike The European Union Ali El-Agraa,2007-08-09 The European Union provides a comprehensive introduction to the economics and policies of the EU The European Commission and the Integration of Europe Liesbet Hooghe,2001 What kind of European Union do top Commission officials want Should the European Union be supranational or intergovernmental Should it promote market liberalism or regulated capitalism Should the Commission be Europe s government or its civil service This 2002 book examines top officials preferences on these questions through analysis of unique data from 137 interviews Understanding the forces that shape human preferences is the subject of intense debate Hooghe demonstrates that the Commission has difficulty shaping its employees preferences in the fluid multi institutional context of the European Union Top officials preferences are better explained by experiences outside rather than inside the Commission political party country and prior work leave deeper imprints than directorate general or cabinet Preferences are also influenced more by internalized values than by self interested career calculation Hooghe s findings are surprising and will challenge a number of common assumptions about the workings and motives of the European Commission Territorial Impact Assessment Eduardo Medeiros,2020-11-19 This book presents a comprehensive debate and analysis of existing Territorial Impact Assessment TIA methodologies designed under the auspices of the ESPON programme since the mid 2000s This is intended to serve as a TIA handbook for the reader to better understand the main differences advantages and shortcomings of each presented TIA methodology It also serves as a manual for professors and students in the field of policy evaluation and territorial analysis as it presents concrete examples of the implementation of each TIA methodology their formulas and intrinsic evaluation elements The purpose of policy evaluation methodologies is to check the main effects of private and public investments in order to report back to policymakers and citizens on their efficiency and effectiveness Over the past decades both in Europe and worldwide there has been an increasingly awareness of the need to implement reinforce policy evaluation practices at all territorial levels At the same time it has become widely accepted that many policy interventions produce impacts in more than one dimensions of territorial development In this context the use of a holistic and territorial approach for policy impact assessment evaluation has rapidly been adopted by the European Commission as a mainstream policy evaluation procedure
