

A person is silhouetted while sitting on a dark, rocky outcrop in the foreground, looking out over a vast, calm ocean. The horizon is low, and the sky is filled with the warm, orange and red hues of a sunset. A few wispy clouds are visible near the sun, which is partially obscured by them. The overall mood is peaceful and contemplative.

Trismegistic writings from an entirely objective historical philological and literary standpoint Being entirely emancipated from any theological preconceptions he is always careful to point out that his conclusions are based solely on critical research in the domain of philology proper he cannot however refrain at times from adding somewhat slyly that these results are of the deepest interest to the theologian indeed we might say highly embarrassing if the theologian happens to be a traditionalist The general scope of Reitzenstein's essay may be gathered from his sub title Studies in Greek Egyptian and Early Christian Literature Our Trismegistic writings form part of a large number of Greek written texts the remains of a once exceedingly extensive Hellenistic theological literature and by Hellenistic theology is meant the blending of Greek and Oriental religious thought and experience This Hellenistic theology was most strongly influenced by Egyptian conceptions and traditions The Egyptian religion is known to have spread itself over the Hellenistic world and every scholar will at once recall to mind how many Greek writers have treated expressly of the Egyptian religion and how many passages in Greek literature refer to Egyptian beliefs as compared with the very few which treat of Babylonian Persian or even Syrian Nevertheless the remains of this Hellenistic theological literature have never been treated as a whole from the point of view of philology the cause of this has been the entire disregard of the subject by Christian theologians coupled with the grotesque grounds on which the consideration of the Hellenistic Egyptian religion is usually set aside one famous theologian lately going so far as to assert that the Egyptian worship was despised on all sides both by Jews and Greeks as the lowest depth of human superstition As then Egypt had a provably dominant position in Hellenistic literature so also must she have had in some sort a correspondingly strong influence on Hellenistic culture and consequently on the development of Hellenistic religious experience The evidence of this is afforded by the Early Christian literature We have therefore here in these Greek Egyptian and Early Christian documents the possibility of methodical work seeing that it is a question of the comparative study of two contemporaneous literatures moreover the language and typology of the Christian literature is bound to betray traces of the general Hellenistic theology of the time The study of Reitzenstein is thus a consideration of our Trismegistic literature as a whole and the analysis and comparison of two of the most typical sermons with other Hellenistic documents and with Early Christian writings This he does with praiseworthy and painstaking industry with great acumen and admirable scholarly equipment but his work is of no service to any but scholars and that too to scholars who are specialists It is a work bristling with technicalities of every description and crammed with untranslated texts Indeed Reitzenstein belongs to that school of philological purists who think it a loss of dignity to translate anything this is a very convenient convention and I myself have often wished that I could have availed myself of it when face to face with innumerable difficulties of translation
