

GARY SOTO

LOOKING AROUND, BELIEVING

How strange that we can begin at anytime.
With two feet we get down the street.
With a hand we undo the rose.
With an eye we lift up the peach tree
And hold it up to the wind—white blossoms
At our feet. Like today. I started
In the yard with my daughter,
With my wife poking at a potted geranium,
And now I am walking down the street,
Amazed that the sun is only so high,
Just over the roof, and the child
At the bus stop is with an umbrella
And a terrier is leaping like a flea
And at the bakery I pass, a palm,
Like a sunctioning starfish, is pressed
To the window. We're keeping busy—
This way, that way, we're making shadows
Where sunlight was, making words
Where there was only noise in the trees.
We're here in the day. One step,
A simple hello, and we're involved.

barriers between Anglo Native American and Mexican American peoples in the United States While he lived critics showed reluctance to engage Sanchez's work fully perhaps in part because of his reputation as a confrontational even outrageous individual Focusing on Canto y grito mi liberaci n and Hechizo spells Miguel R Lopez examines Sanchez's work and places him in the context of the past present and future of Chicano literature Lopez explains clearly the relation of time and space in Sanchez's prolific work and shows him as a writer committed to his craft as well as to his political stance In the end the portrait that emerges is of a poet whose work was linguistically and thematically complex and one who was more passionate controversial and forthright in his expression than any other contemporary Chicano writer
