

Analytical Research Paper Sample: Impact of Advertising on Adolescents' Mentality

Abstract

This research is dedicated to the controversial topic of advertising to children. The researcher has analyzed two points of view with regard to the responsibility for the effects of advertisement on adolescent mentality. The research is focused both on measures that should be taken by parents within the family and by government at the state level in order to decrease the negative impacts of advertising. The researcher also offers efficient methods to solve the problem of negative effects of advertisement on children.

Introduction

Advertising is an indispensable part of the modern informational space. A great amount of advertising on TV and on the internet has a significant impact on adolescents' mentality, as children lack the experience and knowledge that would help them to differentiate real facts and marketing tools. Commercials influence adolescents' worldview in a negative way and enhance the attractiveness of a consumer lifestyle.

There are two main controversial points of view on the responsibility of advertising. The first statement claims parents to be responsible for protecting their children from the negative impact of advertising. The second statement considers this issue to be a problem that should be solved at the state level. This research is aimed at analyzing existing viewpoints with regard to influence of advertising on adolescents' mentality. The research will also offer a range of methods that will be helpful for channeling and restricting the negative effects of advertisements on children.

Analytic Research Foundations for the Next-Generation Electric Grid National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Mathematical Sciences and Their Applications, Committee on Analytical Research Foundations for the Next-Generation Electric Grid, 2016-05-15 Electricity is the lifeblood of modern society and for the vast majority of people that electricity is obtained from large interconnected power grids. However, the grid that was developed in the 20th century and the incremental improvements made since then, including its underlying analytic foundations, is no longer adequate to completely meet the needs of the 21st century. The next generation electric grid must be more flexible and resilient. While fossil fuels will have their place for decades to come, the grid of the future will need to accommodate a wider mix of more intermittent generating sources such as wind and distributed solar photovoltaics. Achieving this grid of the future will require effort on several fronts. There is a need for continued shorter term engineering research and development building on the existing analytic foundations for the grid. But there is also a need for more fundamental research to expand these analytic foundations. Analytic Research Foundations for the Next Generation Electric Grid provide guidance on the longer term critical areas for research in mathematical and computational sciences that is needed for the next generation grid. It offers recommendations that are designed to help direct future research as the grid evolves and to give the nation's research and development infrastructure the tools it needs to effectively develop, test, and use this research.

Porcelain Analysis and Its Role in the Forensic Attribution of Ceramic Specimens Howell G. M. Edwards,2021-11-09 The material for this book arose from the author s research into porcelains over many years as a collector in appreciation of their artistic beauty as an analytical chemist in the scientific interrogation of their body paste enamel pigments and glaze compositions and as a ceramic historian in the assessment of their manufactory foundations and their correlation with available documentation relating to their recipes and formulations A discussion of the role of analysis in the framework of a holistic assessment of artworks and specifically the composition of porcelain namely hard paste soft paste phosphatic bone china and magnesian is followed by its growth from its beginnings in China to its importation into Europe in the 16th Century A survey of European porcelain manufactories in the 17th and 18th Centuries is followed by a description of the raw materials minerals and recipes for porcelain manufacture and details of the chemistry of the high temperature firing processes involved therein The historical backgrounds to several important European factories are considered highlighting the imperfections in the written record that have been perpetuated through the ages The analytical chemical information derived from the interrogation of specimens from fragments shards or perfect finished items is reviewed and operational protocols established for the identification of a factory output from the data presented Several case studies are examined in detail across several porcelain manufactories to indicate the role adopted by modern analytical science with information provided at the quantitative elemental oxide and qualitative molecular spectroscopic levels where applicable The attribution of a specimen to a particular factory is either supported thereby or in some cases a potential reassessment of an earlier attribution is indicated Overall the information provided by analytical chemical data is seen to be extremely useful for porcelain identification and for its potential attribution in the context of a holistic forensic evaluation of hitherto unknown porcelain exemplars of questionable factory origins
