Nerves are the structures that carry signals between the brain, spinal cord, and the rest of the body

Structure

The nervous system is composed of many different parts, each of which has a specific function

The brain is the organ that controls the body's activities

The spinal cord is the tube that carries signals from the brain to the rest of the body

Nerves are the structures that carry signals between the brain, spinal cord, and the rest of the body

Function

The nervous system is responsible for the control and coordination of the body's activities

Parts of neurons

Neurons are the basic units of the nervous system

Neurons are composed of the cell body, dendrites, and axon

The cell body is the part of the neuron that contains the nucleus

Dendrites are the structures that receive signals from other neurons

The axon is the long structure that carries signals away from the cell body

Myelin is the sheath that covers the axon and helps to speed up the transmission of signals

Synapse is the junction between two neurons where signals are passed

Types of neurons

Neurons are classified into three main types: sensory, motor, and interneurons

Sensory neurons carry signals from the sensory organs to the brain

Motor neurons carry signals from the brain to the muscles and glands

Interneurons are located in the brain and spinal cord and connect sensory and motor neurons
