The Primate Mind Frans B. M. de Waal, F. B. M. de Waal, Pier Francesco Ferrari, 2012-01-02 Monkey see monkey do may sound simple but how an individual perceives and processes the behavior of another is one of the most complex and fascinating questions related to the social life of humans and other primates In The Primate Mind experts from around the world take a bottom up approach to primate social behavior by investigating how the primate mind connects with other minds and exploring the shared neurological basis for imitation joint action cooperative behavior and empathy In the past there has been a tendency to ask all or nothing questions such as whether primates possess a theory of mind have self awareness or have culture A bottom up approach asks rather what are the underlying cognitive processes of such capacities some of which may be rather basic and widespread Prominent neuroscientists psychologists ethologists and primatologists use methods ranging from developmental psychology to neurophysiology and neuroimaging to explore these evolutionary foundations A good example is mirror neurons first discovered in monkeys but also assumed to be present in humans that enable a fusing between one s own motor system and the perceived actions of others This allows individuals to read body language and respond to the emotions of others interpret their actions and intentions synchronize and coordinate activities anticipate the behavior of others and learn from them The remarkable social sophistication of primates rests on these basic processes which are extensively discussed in the pages of this volume

Towards a Theory of Thinking Britt Glatzeder,Vinod Goel,Albrecht Müller,2010-03-20 What is Thinking Trying to Define an Equally Fascinating and Elusive Phenomenon Human thinking is probably the most complex phenomenon that evolution has come up with until now There exists a broad spectrum of definitions from subs ing almost all processes of cognition to limiting it to language based sometimes even only to formalizable reasoning processes We work with a medium sized definition according to which thinking encompasses all operations by which cog tive agents link mental content in order to gain new insights or perspectives Mental content is thus a prerequisite for and the substrate on which thinking operations are executed The largely unconscious acts of perceptual object stabilization ca gorization emotional evaluation and retrieving all the above from memory inscriptions are the processes by which mental content is generated and are therefore seen as prerequisites for thinking operations In terms of a differentia specifica the notion of thinking is seen as narrower than the notion of cognition and as wider than the notion of reasoning Thinking is thus seen as a subset of cognition processes and reasoning processes are seen as a subset of thinking Besides reasoning the notion of thinking includes also nonexplicit intuitive and associative processes of linking mental content According to this definition thinking is not dependant on language i e also many animals and certainly all mammals show early forms of thinking

Dynamic Coordination in the Brain Christoph von der Malsburg,William A.
