

QUESTIONS EXAM 2 Answer Key

Q171) Answer the question.

An electric field is the region of space surrounding a charged object, in which any other charged object will experience a force.

Q172) Answer the question.

An atom, the smallest unit of a matter, is made up of

Three basic particles are the constituents of atoms, namely, electrons, protons and neutrons.

The negatively charged electron is present in every atom, whereas positively charged protons and neutrons are present.

The positively charged or uncharged neutrons are present in the nucleus of the atom, and the negatively charged electrons are present outside the nucleus.

An electric charge is a physical property that causes objects to attract or repel each other. It is a scalar quantity, which means it has only magnitude and no direction.

Q173) Answer the question.

An atom is made up of three parts: a central nucleus containing protons and neutrons, and a surrounding cloud of electrons.

Electrons are negatively charged particles that surround the nucleus. Protons are positively charged particles that are in the nucleus. Neutrons are neutral particles that are also in the nucleus.

Electrons are attracted to the positively charged protons in the nucleus, but they are also repelled by other electrons. This creates a balance that keeps the atom stable. If there is too much of one type of particle, the atom will become ionized. The electrons are attracted to the nucleus, but they are also repelled by other electrons. This creates a balance that keeps the atom stable. If there is too much of one type of particle, the atom will become ionized.

Q174) Answer the question.
