central role in many aspects of the world's food systems and cultures. This central role is examined through a range of lenses, namely cross-cultural, intergenerational, and socially diverse. Food: An Insightful Exploration Vinod Huria, 2024-12-28

Driskell, Robert J. Norrell, 2024-01-12

Tuckaleechee Cove Nestled amid the western slopes of the Great Smoky Mountains in East Tennessee, bisected by the Little River and including the community of Townsend, Tuckaleechee Cove is known today as the peaceful side of the Smokies. Celebrated for its natural beauty, the area is also the site of human habitation dating back at least 13,000 years. Tuckaleechee Cove's rich past emerged from years of archaeological and historical research that began in 1999 when a state highway project uncovered a wealth of Native American and Euro American remains, including burial mounds, fragments of tools, weapons, cooking vessels, and other evidence of past activity. This beautifully illustrated book combines details from that study with fascinating bits of history to tell the story of the cove and its disparate peoples. The earliest Native Americans to visit the area were hunters and foragers who moved in small bands through the cove, setting up temporary camps Over the millennia foraging gave way to more settled farming practices with the establishment of permanent settlements about 2 000 years ago By the 1600s the area s residents were Cherokees who would soon encounter European explorers and traders Displacing the Cherokees Euro Americans formed a number of small communities in the cove with colorful names like Frog Town and Needmore They farmed the land built churches schools and small businesses and fought in the Civil War In 1900 a northern investor named W B Townsend recognized the area s potential as a source of timber and two years later the town bearing his name was literally abuzz with sawmill activity By the Great Depression however the mills had closed bringing hardship to cove residents A measure of relief came in 1934 when the Great Smoky Mountains National Park was established nearby opening a new still unfolding chapter in the area s history Boyce N Driskell is the past director of the Archaeological Research Laboratory and adjunct research professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Tennessee Knoxville Robert J Norrell is a professor and the Bernadotte Schmidt Chair of Excellence in the Department of History at the University of Tennessee Knoxville

Ancient Ocean Crossings Stephen C. Jett, 2017-06-06 Paints a compelling picture of impressive pre Columbian cultures and Old World civilizations that contrary to many prevailing notions were not isolated from one another In Ancient Ocean Crossings Reconsidering the Case for Contacts with the Pre Columbian Americas Stephen Jett encourages readers to reevaluate the common belief that there was no significant interchange between the chiefdoms and civilizations of Eurasia and Africa and peoples who occupied the alleged terra incognita beyond the great oceans More than a hundred centuries separate the time that Ice Age hunters are conventionally thought to have crossed a land bridge from Asia into North America and the arrival of Columbus in the Bahamas in 1492 Traditional belief has long held that earth s two hemispheres were essentially cut off from one another as a result of the post Pleistocene meltwater fed rising oceans that covered that bridge The oceans along with arctic climates and daunting terrestrial distances formed impermeable barriers to interhemispheric communication This viewpoint implies that the cultures of the Old World and those of the Americas developed independently Drawing on abundant and concrete evidence to support his theory for significant pre Columbian contacts Jett suggests that many ancient peoples had both the seafaring capabilities and the motives to cross the oceans and in fact did so repeatedly and with great impact His deep and broad work synthesizes information and ideas from archaeology geography linguistics climatology oceanography ethnobotany genetics medicine and the history of navigation and seafaring making an innovative and persuasive multidisciplinary case for a new understanding of human societies and their diffuse but interconnected development

Ceramics, Cuisine and Culture Michela Spataro, Alexandra Villing, 2015-10-31 The 23 papers presented here are the product of the interdisciplinary exchange of ideas and approaches to the study of kitchen pottery between archaeologists material scientists historians and ethnoarchaeologists They aim to set a vital but long neglected category of evidence in its wider social political and economic contexts Structured around main themes concerning technical aspects of pottery production cooking as socioeconomic practice and changing tastes culinary identities and cross cultural encounters a range of social economic and technological models are discussed on the basis of insights gained from the study of kitchen pottery production use and evolution Much discussion and work in the last decade has focussed on technical and social aspects of coarse ware and in particular kitchen ware The chapters in this volume contribute to this debate moving kitchen pottery beyond the Binfordian technomic category and embracing a wider view linking processualism ceramic ecology behavioral schools and ethnoarchaeology to research on historical developments and cultural transformations covering a broad geographical area of the Mediterranean region and spanning a long chronological sequence Culinary Turn Nicolaj van der Meulen, Jörg Wiesel, Raphaela Reinmann, 2017-04-15 Kitchen cooking nutrition and eating have become omnipresent cultural topics They stand at the center of design gastronomy nutrition science and agriculture Artists have appropriated cooking as an aesthetic practice in turn cooks are adapting the staging practices that go with an artistic self image This development is accompanied by crisis of eating behaviour and a philosophy of cooking as a speculative cultural technique This volume investigates the dimensions of a new culinary turn combining for the very first time contributions from the theory and practice of cooking Abundance Monica L. Smith, 2017-06-15 Using case studies from around the globe including Mesoamerica North and South America Africa China and the Greco Roman world and across multiple time periods the authors in this volume make the case that abundance provides an essential explanatory perspective on ancient peoples choices and activities Economists frequently focus on scarcity as a driving principle in the development of social and economic hierarchies yet focusing on plenitude enables the understanding of a range of cohesive behaviors that were equally important for the development of social complexity Our earliest human ancestors were highly mobile hunter gatherers who sought out places that provided ample food water and raw materials Over time humans accumulated and displayed an increasing quantity and variety of goods In households shrines tombs caches and dumps archaeologists have discovered large masses of materials that were deliberately gathered curated distributed and discarded by ancient peoples The volume s authors draw upon new economic theories to consider the social ideological and political implications of human engagement with abundant quantities of resources and physical objects and consider how individual and household engagements with material culture were conditioned by the quest for abundance Abundance shows that the human propensity for mass consumption is not just the result of modern production capacities but fulfills a longstanding focus on plenitude as both the assurance of well being and a buffer against uncertainty This book will be of great interest to scholars and students in economics anthropology and cultural studies Contributors Traci Ardren Amy Bogaard Elizabeth Klarich Abigail Levine Christopher R Moore Tito E Naranjo Stacey Pierson James M Potter Fran ois G Richard Christopher W Schmidt Carol Schultze Payson Sheets Monica L Smith Katheryn C Twiss Mark D Varien Justin St P Walsh Mar a Nieves Zede o The Prehistory of Food Chris Gosden, Jon G.
