

Advanced Placement® Economics: Microeconomics and Macroeconomics Combined Course Syllabus

Why Study Economics?

The natural inclination of understanding how to be better as fully people encompasses their capacity to make good market decisions that affect the economy. In addition, economists analyze structural policies such as monetary policy of the “feds” (Federal Reserve), budget and federal budget deficits. The knowledge gained in this course will enable you to be a more capable and successful participant in an ever-changing global economy.

The primary of economics focus directly on the rationality of behavior of the individual agents in their roles as consumers, profit producers, producers and others in the market. They study individual and institutional behavior and decisions, before emphasizing, a broader economic understanding of how the economy works and the consequences of each for the economy and its growth and well-being.

One of the most important things to remember this year: learning economics is like learning a language. Until you learn to think economically, you will struggle to making conclusions and drawing graphs. Once equipped to think economically, you will begin to understand economics.

What is our Purpose?

Students are understanding of economic principles that apply to the business world:

- individual behavior (theory, both rational and irrational), within the business system.
- Human behavior (as markets).
- Government in economic efficiency and equity.

interested in investing time into the effective improvement of their personal teaching methods and for those who desire to teach students how to think like an economist. It sets guidelines for the successful integration of economics into a wide variety of traditional and non traditional settings in college and graduate courses with some attention paid to primary and secondary classrooms. The International Handbook on Teaching and Learning Economics is highly recommended for all economics instructors and individuals supporting economic education in courses in and outside of the major. This Handbook provides a multitude of rich resources that make it easy for new and veteran instructors to improve their instruction in ways promising to excite an increasing number of students about learning economics. This Handbook should be on every instructor's desk and referenced regularly. Tawni Hunt Ferrarini, The American Economist. In delightfully readable short chapters by leaders in the sub fields who are also committed teachers, this encyclopedia of how and what in teaching economics covers everything. There is nothing else like it and it should be required reading for anyone starting a teaching career and for anyone who has been teaching for fewer than 50 years. Daniel S. Hamermesh, University of Texas at Austin, US. The International Handbook on Teaching and Learning Economics provides a comprehensive resource for instructors and researchers in economics, both new and experienced. This wide ranging collection is designed to enhance student learning by helping economic educators learn more about course content, pedagogic techniques, and the scholarship of the teaching enterprise. The internationally renowned contributors present an exhaustive compilation of accessible insights into major research in economic education across a wide range of topic areas including Pedagogic practice, teaching techniques, technology use, assessment, contextual techniques, and K-12 practices. Research findings, principles, courses, measurement factors influencing student performance, evaluation, and the scholarship of teaching and learning. Institutional administrative issues, faculty development, the undergraduate and graduate student, and international perspectives. Teaching enhancement initiatives, foundations, organizations, and workshops. Grounded in research and covering past and present knowledge as well as future challenges, this detailed compendium of economics education will prove an invaluable reference tool for all involved in the teaching of economics: graduate students, new teachers, lecturers, faculty, researchers, chairs, deans, and directors. AP
