Analyses of the European Patent System Stefan Wagner, 2007-12-14 Research on the patent system and the analysis of patenting activities have become an important field in economics and business administration. The global demand for patent protection has been increasing strongly over the last decades. Institutional changes as well as the broadening of patentable subject matter pose new challenges to patentees and patent offices alike. Especially in Europe the debate on the patentability of biotechnology and software related inventions led to broad public attention to the design of the patent system. Given these developments it is no wonder that practitioners as well as policy makers are turning to researchers for answers on how to cope with new challenges threatening the patent system. In his dissertation Stefan Wagner attempts to answer some of these questions. Wagner applies advanced econometric methods to large scale data sets which were assembled specifically for the purpose of this thesis. His analysis focuses on various aspects of patent filings, examination and opposition at the European Patent Office. Each of the four self-contained chapters of this book addresses different issues which are important to all stakeholders of the patent system. Wagner closely analyzes institutional features of the European Patent Office such as the duration of the examination of patent applications, the determinants of the occurrence of patent oppositions and the patentability of business methods under the European Patent Convention. In his concluding chapter he examines the managerial decision between outsourcing patent related services to patent attorneys or generating them in house.

Standardization under EU Competition Rules and US Antitrust Laws Björn Lundqvist, 2014-05-30 Offering in depth analysis of the case law currently being written in courtrooms all over the world under the so called patent war, the book puts forward a new method for applying competition law to standards and standard setting – in both its collusion and competition aspects.

Bioinked Boundaries Pratap Devarapalli, 2025-05-23 This book presents a comprehensive and comparative study of the patentability of bioprinting inventions, specifically bioinks and bioprinted tissues in the US, the Europe and Australia. It employs a two phase analysis to understand if the patentable subject matter requirement is a hurdle to patenting bioprinting inventions, specifically bioinks and bioprinted tissues. The first phase is a doctrinal analysis of the patent laws and jurisprudence in respective jurisdictions, highlighting the similarities and differences in their approaches to the subject matter requirement. The second phase is an empirical analysis of the patent prosecution data from patent applications filed in each jurisdiction with claims directed towards bioprinted tissues and bioinks, revealing how patent examiners apply the patent provisions to accept or object to such patent claims. The book offers several contributions to the field of bioprinting and patent law. First, it provides a detailed and up to date overview of the current state of the art and the legal landscape of bioprinting inventions. Second, it identifies the main criteria and factors that patent examiners use to assess the patentable subject matter of bioprinted tissues and bioinks, such as the level of human intervention, the markedly different characteristics and the industrial applicability. Third, it proposes a patenting framework models for each jurisdiction which can assist patent applicants to draft and amend their patent claims in accordance with the patentable subject matter requirement Fourth it evaluates the potential benefits and implications of patenting bioprinting inventions for the bioprinting industry and society at large such as fostering innovation promoting public health and indirectly addressing ethical and social issues The main benefit that the reader will derive from the book is a deeper understanding of the patentability of bioprinting inventions specifically bioinks and bioprinted tissues in different jurisdictions and contexts The book will help the reader to appreciate the legal and technical aspects of bioprinting and patent law and how they affect the bioprinting industry and society at large
