suffering from poverty unemployment health disparities crime educational failures and poor living conditions that are reminiscent of Third World countries The concept of state harm introduced in this book constitutes a framework that suggests a reasonable explanation for the poor social conditions in these Third World societies that make up the reservation system in the United States The book also shows how the psychological and emotional traumas of colonization relocation

Education plays a central part in the history of racial inequality in America with people of color long advocating for equal educational rights and opportunities Though school desegregation initially was a boon for educational equality schools began to resegregate in the 1980s and schools are now more segregated than ever In Integrations historian Zo Burkholder and philosopher Lawrence Blum set out to shed needed light on the enduring problem of segregation in American schools From a historical perspective the authors analyze how ideas about race influenced the creation and development of American public schools Importantly the authors focus on multiple marginalized groups in American schooling African Americans Native Americans Latinxs and Asian Americans In the second half of the book the authors explore what equal education should and could look like They argue for a conception of educational goods including the development of moral and civic capacities that should and can be provided to every child through schooling including integration itself Ultimately the authors show that in order to grapple with integration in a meaningful way we must think of integration in the plural both in its multiple histories and the many possible meanings of and courses of action for integration
