in the Troodos mountains The family as he calls the group want to make Pavlos clean after Aristo had discovered his boy taking much more than verbal comfort from the middle aged and charming Katherine an archaeologist colleague of Aristo s At times I did I have to take the threat of the cleansing ritual and the ancient misuse of the scythe with a pinch of salt but there was no obvious striving after sensation and shock and through all the looming menace Pavlos wants only to trust that his father is not leading him to a family which will harm him but that after all his Dad is only trying to get closer to him On the whole when the scythe was not looming round the corner a moving story always was Phillip Mason The opening chapters offered no Big Bang sensation and yet I was hooked early partly by the dry humour in which the author dips Mr Spiropoulos the education inspector and some of the Cypriot villagers and partly because of the feeling that like the teenage Pavlos who is hypnotised by his father Aristo I felt I myself was gradually sinking alongside the character into the trances which Aristo excuses as the Greek lessons for his boy Through hypnotism Aristo wants to convince his son there is a wider family even though the authorities say his family were burnt beyond recognition when the Turks invaded Cyprus The strangeness of the act made me read on to find out whether Aristo was really as unloving as the sessions would suggest or whether he was just a desperately lonely man In turn Pavlos craves to be closer to his Dad but when the weird family take on an ancient connection up in the deserted Troodos mountains at night I feared for the son and wondered whether father or son would draw closer or still further apart Pavlos turns to the mature Katherine another colleague of his father s and into whose charms he ultimately sinks but to what kind of family Aristo is leading him kept me on board
