10th English Guide Modal:

English in Films Volume 10: English as a Second Language Jon Michael Miller, 2011-10-20 English in Films is a series of classroom exercises for teachers of English as a Second Language for study at home students. The movies have been carefully selected for their language and cultural value in learning and improving one's English vocabulary, listening, conversation, writing, grammar, and American culture. Our approach is to have fun while learning and to learn in a multidimensional way. Answers are provided and the packets may be copied and edited for non-commercial use. Each film is broken into roughly 15 minute segments which are divided into sections for vocabulary development, listening, writing, discussion, and testing.

Modals and Periphrastics in English Paul Westney, 2013-02-07 English has a number of periphrastic verbal forms that are semantically close to particular modal verbs and perform suppletive functions in relation to them, e.g. have got to, must, and be able to, can. After an exploration of the syntactic, semantic, and phonological properties of potential periphrastic forms, this study investigates the nature of the relationship between the modals must, should, will, and can and various semantically close periphrastics using a spoken corpus of British English as the primary source of data. The focus is on the pragmatic interpretation of the items, being compared with some attention to their functions in discourse. These items are notoriously idiosyncratic both syntactically and semantically, but the general contrast claimed by some scholars between the maximally unmarked status of modals and the relatively marked status of periphrastics is amply confirmed, and this together with the basic association of modality with alternative possible worlds is shown to be reflected in a number of different ways, including the claimed objectivity of periphrastics and the tendency of some to be associated with actuality. Level of formality is also found to be a significant though not uniform factor here.
