Plasma Processing XII G. S. Mathad, D. Misra, K. B. Sundaram, 1998 Notes and Queries, 1887 Genetic Programming Theory and Practice XII Rick Riolo, William P. Worzel, Mark Kotanchek, 2015-06-04 These contributions written by the foremost international researchers and practitioners of Genetic Programming GP explore the synergy between theoretical and empirical results on real world problems producing a comprehensive view of the state of the art in GP Topics in this volume include gene expression regulation novel genetic models for glaucoma inheritable epigenetics combinators in genetic programming sequential symbolic regression system dynamics sliding window symbolic regression large feature problems alignment in the error space HUMIE winners Boolean multiplexer function and highly distributed genetic programming systems Application areas include chemical process control circuit design financial data mining and bioinformatics Readers will discover large scale real world applications of GP to a variety of problem domains via in depth presentations of the latest and most significant results Word Problems Stephen K. Reed, 1998-12-01 Research by cognitive psychologists and mathematics educators has often been compartmentalized by departmental boundaries Word Problems integrates this research to show its relevance to the debate on the reform of mathematics education Beginning with the different knowledge structures that represent rule learning and conceptual learning the discussion proceeds to the application of these ideas to solving word problems This is followed by chapters on elementary multistep and algebra problems which examine similarities and differences in the cognitive skills required by students as the problems become more complex The next section on abstracting adapting and representing solutions illustrates different ways in which solutions can be transferred to related problems The last section focuses on topics emphasized in the NCTM Standards and concludes with a chapter that evaluates some of the programs on curriculum reform The Structure of Learner Varieties Henriëtte Hendriks, 2011-12-22 This volume brings together ten contributions to the study of untutored mainly second but also first language acquisition All chapters have been written from a functionalist perspective and take as the main theoretical framework a model of spontaneous second language acquisition centered on the basic variety as proposed by Klein and Perdue The chapters in the volume are grouped around two research themes The first theme concerns the acquisition of scope phenomena negation scope particles the second one deals with referential movement reference to person time and space Both parts provide insights in the structure of learner varieties at various stages of development and are followed by a discussion chapter Scope phenomena such as negation and frequency adverbials present an important learning problem as learners have to reconcile the logical structure of their utterances with the syntactic specifics of the language being learned Their acquisition has been relatively neglected in studies up to date however and we even lack detailed knowledge about the interpretation of scope particles in the target languages The chapters in this part of the volume set out to provide more knowledge about scope phenomena in general more detailed descriptions of the particles in the languages

under consideration and a more general understanding of how scope is acquired Strong findings resulting from the ESF project suggested universal trends in how untutored learners deal with acquisition in the very early stages the basic variety Chapters in this second part of the volume on referential movement look at acquisition at more advanced stages including the production of near native speakers Learners who progress beyond the basic variety increasingly grammaticalise their productions This later development is supposedly more variable as more specific aspects of the target languages are now being acquired Chapters in this part allow to shed more light on the question regarding universal and language specific influences on language acquisition
