demand important albeit imperfect representation and responsiveness within the country's expanding cities Drawing on years of pioneering fieldwork in India's slums including ethnographic observation interviews surveys and experiments Adam Michael Auerbach and Tariq Thachil reveal how migrants harness forces of political competition as residents voters community leaders and party workers to sow unexpected seeds of accountability within city politics This multifaceted agency provokes new questions about how political networks form during urbanization In answering these questions this book overturns longstanding assumptions about how political machines exploit the urban poor to stifle competition foster ethnic favoritism and entrench vote buying By documenting how poor migrants actively shape urban politics in counterintuitive ways Migrants and Machine Politics sheds new light on the political consequences of urbanization across India and the Global South
