

ORGAN SYSTEMS

The human body is either studied by regions or by organ systems. This book uses the organ system approach in which individual organs (such as bones) are grouped into the larger organ systems (for example, the skeletal system). Typically eleven organ systems are described. The skeletal system consists of all of the bones of the body. Examples are the femur and the humerus. The nervous system consists of the nerves, spinal cord, and brain while the lymphatic system consists of lymph glands, conducting tubes called lymphatics, and organs such as the spleen. The term immune system is more of a functional classification and will not be treated as a separate system here. The muscular system consists of individual skeletal muscles as organs such as the pectoralis major and deltoid. Label the organ systems underneath each illustration and label the selected organs by using the terms available. When you finish, select different colors for each organ system and color them in.

Organ System	Organ	Organ	Organ

Physiology Coloring Workbook Kenneth Axen, Kathleen Vermitsky Axen, 1997 Physiology Coloring Workbook is a breakthrough approach to learning and remembering the body's processes. Written and illustrated by experts who are both research scientists and teachers, it features 250 striking original illustrations that will give students a clear and enduring understanding of physiology. Physiological processes are fully explained and complex subjects are approached through the gradual introduction of simple drawings. Each lesson includes clearly displayed labels and specific coloring instructions. This book is an invaluable and lasting resource for students in disciplines including anatomy and physiology, biology, nursing, physical therapy, and rehabilitation, medical technology, nutrition, physical education, allied health, and health sciences.
