and may differ between typically developing children and those with autism and other atypical conditions. Gaining a greater understanding of these issues is important to increasing our understanding of theory of mind itself, the nature of cognitive development, the similarities and differences between typically and atypically developing children, and whether it may be possible to devise interventions to improve theory of mind either directly or by means of improving other abilities. The goal of the current Research Topic is to bring together articles on various aspects of the theory of mind and any concurrent and longitudinal relationships to other cognitive abilities and characteristics. These articles may involve studies of children, adults, or both. It is expected that they will primarily include empirical research papers, but theoretical articles, literature reviews, and meta-analyses are also welcome.
