Heart Failure, An Issue of Critical Nursing Clinics Jennifer Kitchens, 2016-01-07 Heart failure is the only cardiovascular disease that is increasing. The impact on the critical care environment and the health care system as a whole is significant from both a cost and burden to the system perspective. There are 6.5 million hospital days a year and nearly 40 billion dollars in yearly health care costs attributed to heart failure in the United States. There are more Medicare monies spent for diagnosing and treating heart failure than any other Diagnosis Related Group. There is a 24% hospital re-admission rate for this diagnosis which leads to financial implications for health care systems. The human cost is also significant. Less than half of Americans diagnosed with heart failure survive greater than 5 years. The ongoing health care needs and cost of this chronic disease takes a significant toll on patients' finances, time, and quality of life. Over 2.9 billion dollars is spent annually on the pharmaceutical management of heart failure in the United States. This diagnosis is the leading cause of hospitalization for patients who are 65 years of age and older. Few health care providers in the critical care environment are not affected by heart failure on a routine basis. Caring for these patients and their families is both a challenging and yet a rewarding experience. This edition will provide critical care nurses with a comprehensive heart failure review which is essential in caring for this challenging population given the dynamic health and critical care environments. Fat Chance Benedict Gross, Joe Harris, Emily Riehl, 2019-06-13 Designed for the intellectually curious, this book provides a solid foundation in basic probability theory in a charming style without technical jargon. This text will immerse the reader in a mathematical view of the world and teach them techniques to solve real world problems both inside and outside the casino.

To the Past Ruth Wells Sandwell, 2006-01-01 Recent years have witnessed a breakdown in consensus about what history should be taught within Canadian schools. There is now a heightened awareness of the political nature of deciding whose history is or should be included in social studies and history classrooms. Meanwhile, as educators are debating what history should be taught, developments in educational and cognitive research are expanding our understanding of how best to teach it. To the Past explores some of the political, cultural, and educational issues surrounding what history education is and why we should care about it in the twenty-first century in Canada. Originally broadcast in the fall of 2002 on the CBC Radio program Ideas, the lectures that comprise this volume not only address how history is taught in Canadian classrooms but also explore strands within larger discussions about the meaning and purposes of history more generally. Contributors show how Canadians are demonstrating a new interest in what scholars have termed historical consciousness or collective memory through participation in a wide range of cultural activities, from visiting museums to watching the History Channel. Canadian adults and children alike seem to be seeking answers to questions of identity, meaning, community, and nation in their study of the past. Through this series of essays, readers will have the opportunity to explore some of the political and ethical issues involved in this emerging field of Canadian citizenship through
