biology and the neurosciences it demonstrates how vulnerability and resilience are not fixed personality traits as is commonly assumed but rather fluid and dynamic states that result from inhibitory and developmental factors that reside within individuals and their external environments Each chapter focuses on factors that create vulnerability and those that promote resilience with reference to important subjects such as child development epigenetics trauma shame addiction poverty emotional intelligence personality empathy compassion and behaviour change Attention is given to the role of positive early life experiences in creating an internal working model of the world that is based on trust intimacy and hope and how the root causes of vulnerability often lie in the cyclical relationship that exists between child maltreatment trauma and socially deprived environments that cumulatively act to keep people locked in states of inter generational poverty The author explores pressing and important workplace issues such as occupational stress and burnout and highlights the urgent need for compassionate systems of management that are functionally equipped to address human error stress and trauma in complex professional arenas where staff are continually exposed to other peoples suffering The book also demonstrates how strategies and processes which coerce individuals and groups into changing their behaviour are generally counterproductive and it explains how resilient change is invariably supported by strategies that enhance trust cooperation personal control and self efficacy This book will benefit professional staff including health emergency and social services humanitarian workers counsellors and therapists as well as students who want to learn more about the conceptual frameworks that explain vulnerability and resilience
