A former Gallup Global Leadership Research and Development leader and the New York Times bestselling coauthor of Strengths Based Leadership demystifies the aura and complexity surrounding high performing leaders through original research and interviews with high performing global leaders The leadership space is rife with myths such as the belief that anyone can be a leader with enough effort or that a leader s strengths can be their greatest weaknesses According to Barry Conchie and his business partner Sarah Dalton these statements are unfounded THE FIVE TALENTS THAT REALLY MATTER explains how high performing leaders are talented in five essential ways This book strips away the fluff in leadership and unveils and describes the traits and characteristics that actually determine high performance leadership These talents provide a template against which career driven managers and leaders can assess and develop their own capabilities The five evidence based talent dimensions are Direction High performing leaders describe a compelling intrinsically good destination and help others understand that getting there will be worth the effort Drive This dimension hardly needs a description We all know it when we see it strong work ethic tenacity goal orientation being a self starter Influence The ability to motivate persuade challenge and change the minds of others Relationships People matter to outstanding leaders They can build commitment and trust among the people they work with Execution Excellent leaders are obsessed with getting work done and how work gets done Through meticulous research assessment and testing Conchie and Dalton have built a database that predicts the talents and behaviours of the most successful leaders In this book they present for the first the first time a scientific model that demystifies the aura and complexity surrounding high performing leaders The Illustrated London News ,1857 Choice ,1992 Who's Who in the West Marquis Who's Who,2006-06 "Science, Technology, and Utopias " Christine Filippone,2017-07-05 The rise of proxy wars the Space Race and cybernetics during the Cold War marked science and technology as vital sites of social and political power Women artists historically excluded from these domains responded critically while simultaneously redeploying the products of Technological Society into works that promoted ideals of progress and alternative concepts of human community In this innovative book author Christine Filippone offers the first focused examination of the conceptual use of science and technology by women artists during and just after the women s movement She argues that artists Alice Aycock Agnes Denes Martha Rosler and Carolee Schneemann used science and technology to mount a critique on Cold War American society as they saw it conservative and constricting Motivated by the contemporary American Women s Movement these artists transformed science and technology into new modes of artmaking that transgressed modernist heroic painterly styles and subverted the traditional economic structures of the gallery the museum and the dealer At the same time the artists also embraced these domains of knowledge and practice as expressions of hope for a better future Many found inspiration in the scientific theory of open systems which investigated problems of wholeness dynamic interaction and organization enabling consideration of the porous boundaries between human bodies and their social political and nonhuman environments Filippone also establishes that the theory of open systems not only informed feminist art but also continued to influence women artists practice of reclamation and ecological art through the twenty first century Looking Inside Jets Simone Marzani, Gregory Soye, Michael Spannowsky, 2019-05-11 This concise primer reviews the latest developments in the field of jets Jets are collinear sprays of hadrons produced in very high energy collisions e g at the LHC or at a future hadron collider They are essential to and ubiquitous in experimental analyses making their study crucial At present LHC energies and beyond massive particles around the electroweak scale are frequently produced with transverse momenta that are much larger than their mass i e boosted The decay products of such boosted massive objects tend to occupy only a relatively small and confined area of the detector and are observed as a single jet Jets hence arise from many different sources and it is important to be able to distinguish the rare events with boosted resonances from the large backgrounds originating from Quantum Chromodynamics QCD This requires familiarity with the internal properties of jets such as their different radiation patterns a field broadly known as jet substructure This set of notes begins by providing a phenomenological motivation explaining why the study of jets and their substructure is of particular importance for the current and future program of the LHC followed by a brief but insightful introduction to QCD and to hadron collider phenomenology The next section introduces jets as complex objects constructed from a sequential recombination algorithm In this context some experimental aspects are also reviewed Since jet substructure calculations are multi scale problems that call for all order treatments resummations the bases of such calculations are discussed for simple jet quantities With these QCD and jet physics ingredients in hand readers can then dig into jet substructure itself Accordingly these notes first highlight the main concepts behind substructure techniques and introduce a list of the main jet substructure tools that have been used over the past decade Analytic calculations are then provided for several families of tools the goal being to identify their key characteristics In closing the book provides an overview of LHC searches and measurements where jet substructure techniques are used reviews the main take home messages and outlines future perspectives Book Review Index ,2006 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation Who's who in Engineering John William Leonard, Winfield Scott Downs, M.
