Japanese Advance into the Pacific Ocean Akitoshi Hiraoka,2017-09-12 This book asserts that the albatross was the reason for the advance of the Japanese into the isolated islands in the Pacific after the abolition of the Japanese closed door policy that had been in effect from the seventeenth century to the latter part of the nineteenth century The birds plumage was of high quality and sold at quite a good price in Europe The Japanese realized the advantage of this global trade and their desire to capture albatross motivated them to advance into the Pacific The exploration of the uninhabited islands had become a fast moving trend defined by the author as the Bird Rush As a consequence the advance into the Pacific by the Japanese resulted in the expansion of Japanese territory The author has interpreted this Japanese movement into the Pacific by making use of the framework of three distinct shifts in the aim of their actions from birds to guano phosphate ore in the agents of action from individual speculators to commercial capital and then to monopolistic capital and from the sea near Japan to the wider Pacific This concept can be termed a view of history centered on the albatross

Studies in Culture Contact James G. Cusick,2015-03-05 People have long been fascinated about times in human history when different cultures and societies first came into contact with each other how they reacted to that contact and why it sometimes occurred peacefully and at other times was violent or catastrophic Studies in Culture Contact Interaction Culture Change and Archaeology edited by James G Cusick seeks to define the role of culture contact in human history to identify issues in the study of culture contact in archaeology and to provide a critical overview of the major theoretical approaches to the study of culture and contact In this collection of essays anthropologists and archaeologists working in Europe and the Americas consider three forms of culture contact colonization cultural entanglement and symmetrical exchange Part I provides a critical overview of theoretical approaches to the study of culture contact offering assessments of older concepts in anthropology such as acculturation as well as more recently formed concepts including world systems and center periphery models of contact Part II contains eleven case studies of specific contact situations and their relationships to the archaeological record with times and places as varied as pre and post Hispanic Mexico Iron Age France Jamaican sugar plantations European provinces in the Roman Empire and the missions of Spanish Florida Studies in Culture Contact provides an extensive review of the history of culture contact in anthropological studies and develops a broad framework for studying culture contact s role moving beyond a simple formulation of contact and change to a more complex understanding of the amalgam of change and continuity in
