

KNOWLEDGE OF ACCA QUALIFICATIONS AMONG THE STUDENTS OF THE CERTIFIED "ACCA ACCOUNTING" PROGRAMME

Arieta Szadzińska, Jarosław Kujawski

Faculty of Management, University of Gdańsk (POLAND)

Abstract

The article presents the results of the research on the students' awareness of the ACCA's and other professional organisations' brands, carried out at the University of Gdańsk in 2015, in the national and international perspective. The full research project is titled "Research on the students' knowledge of the brands of professional auditing and accounting bodies". This paper presents the outcomes of the first stage of the research on identification of the ACCA brands' knowledge among full-time accounting and finance graduate students at the Faculty of Management of the Gdańsk University in Poland. The study's objective was focused on obtaining a realistic picture of the students' actual familiarity with the ACCA brands. The study was undertaken as a consequence of a successful accreditation process carried out at the faculty, with the aim to acquire the ACCA's acceptance of the university's curriculum for the Fundamentals level of qualifications.

A direct questionnaire survey was applied as a research method. The questions were given to a group of 30 students attending the first accredited ACCA Accounting programme offered by the University of Gdańsk as a full-time master of science.

The main findings emergent from the research are as follows:

- 100 percent of the researched students are familiar with the ACCA acronym and its full name in English, but only 77 percent of them can translate it into the closest Polish counterpart;
- 77 percent of them learned about the ACCA at the Faculty during their undergraduate studies;
- 89 percent of the questioned students are informed that the ACCA-accredited curriculum provides them with the possibility to pass all the Fundamentals courses during the MSc studies;
- 83 percent of those students are aware of being granted exemptions from examination fees;
- 77 percent of the questioned participants acknowledge that alumni with certified ACCA qualifications can count on higher remuneration in their professional carriers, compared to those without such certification;
- 34 percent of the respondents envision extension of their education from the Fundamentals level to the Professional Scheme, after MSc graduation;
- 89 percent of the surveyed students link their carriers with various professions in the field of accounting and finance.

Three basic limitations resulting from the very idea of this research ought to be noted. First of all, due to the prime and original character of the accreditation process being offered to the university by the ACCA, the study is of a pioneering nature to both the Faculty and University. Secondly, only one group of students - the first one in history constitutes the subject of this study. Thirdly, this group consists of only 31 members, 30 of whom responded to the survey questions. Therefore, the above-mentioned results do not attempt to represent anything more than an initial viewpoint on this issue. Those limitations make the obtained results the basis for further systematic research in this area, specifically on the accredited post-MSc curriculum and on the Professional Scheme programme offered by the University of Gdańsk in cooperation with the ACCA and the BPP.

The study provides valuable information about a prospective harmonization of the universities' educational offer with the changing demand on the labour market. Additionally, it reveals the state of the students' knowledge of accounting and auditing professional organisations as well as young people's expectations in terms of getting valuable, respectful and highly remunerated positions in their professional carriers.

Keywords: students, accredited programme, accounting and auditing, professional qualifications, ACCA, Fundamentals, Professional Scheme, Faculty of Management, University of Gdańsk, Poland.
