

Touchstone 3.1: Personality Development

SCENARIO: Monica is a single mom who has a 16-year-old son named Jordan. Monica and Jordan were close at one point. As of late, Monica has been noticing that Jordan spends a lot of time focusing on what his friends think about him. Without his mother's permission, Jordan recently crawled out of his bedroom window and went to a party when he was supposed to be studying for an exam. Upon his return home, Jordan reeked of alcohol and marijuana and was caught by his mother. Shocked and appalled by her son's recent behavior, she grounded him for two weeks.

What advice would you give Monica about her son's recent behavior?

ASSIGNMENT: Using what you learned about the adolescent brain and social development, you will answer questions related to this case study assignment below. Your goals are to help Monica understand why her son makes the choices he does and recommend some strategies that may help solve the problem.

Download and use the touchstone response template to answer the questions.

A. Assignment

DIRECTIONS: To complete the assignment, you will answer the following four questions in 5-7 sentences each:

1. What happens inside the brain of a teenager that makes it difficult for Jordan to weigh the risks and rewards of his behavior? Describe how the adolescent brain weighs risk and reward.
2. Why does it appear that Jordan values the opinion of his peers more than the opinion of his mother? Explain the psychological concepts that may account for why Jordan places value on his peers' opinions.
3. What advice would you give Jordan's mother, Monica, that would teach him how to make better choices and decisions? Discuss a specific strategy that Monica may implement to help her son make better decisions.
4. If you were in Monica's shoes, how would you feel? Explain why a better understanding of Monica's perspective could result in more constructive advice.

Leonardo da Vinci Sir Kenneth M. Clark, 2017-03-17 Sir Kenneth Clark made his name as a scholar of Leonardo da Vinci by a Critical Catalogue of Leonardo's drawings at Windsor Castle published in 1935 which was recognized as establishing the subject on a firmer chronological basis Four years later he produced this short book on Leonardo as an artist which has been generally regarded as the clearest and sanest introduction to this great and controversial subject This is the first book on Leonardo written after critics had reached general agreement as to which works were really by his own hand It is also the first study of Leonardo to take advantage of our wider range of aesthetic experience and our fuller knowledge of psychology Sir Kenneth writes that all great art should be reinterpreted for each generation but although his interpretation of Leonardo is twenty years old it remains valid today He has written a fresh introduction which goes rather deeper than his previous conclusions and for this edition has made extensive revisions to the text Your true critic must be doubly armed with knowledge and intuition Sir Kenneth Clark armed with both to a remarkable degree has written a book on Leonardo's development as an artist which I do not exaggerate will set a new standard in art criticism in England Sunday Times It is so intelligent so modest so beautifully written and so wise Harold Nicolson an account of his development as an artist Kenneth Clark, 1952
