

Managerial Accounting for Chinese students

Expanding LSE's engagement with China

Organised in cooperation with Suman Education International, LSE Custom Programmes' tailored course on Managerial Accounting and Financial Control brought together 42 students from 12 universities of Jiangsu province in China. The programme consisted of five half-days of lectures spread across two weeks, supplemented by facilitated self-study sessions to allow the students to conduct independent study and research at the LSE Library. It covered a wide range of topics across managerial accounting and financial control, including capital budgeting, investment appraisal and strategic considerations in accounting.

The students undertook a competitive selection process to qualify in terms of academic merit and language proficiency, and the course director, Professor Aj Bhimani of the Department of Accounting, commented that 'the quality of the students was very high indeed'. Several of the students hope to apply for an LSE degree in the future.

'It was good to see so many hardworking and aspiring students being able to enrich their studies at home universities via this custom module,' commented Yuri Bikkbaev, Director of LSE Custom Programmes. 'We hope to grow this knowledge sharing engagement where LSE research and teaching excellence are made available to wider audiences of young people in China.'

Accounting Chinese Americans Today:

Asian American Political Participation Janelle S. Wong, S. Karthick Ramakrishnan, Taeku Lee, Jane Junn, Janelle Wong, 2011-10-01 Asian Americans are a small percentage of the U S population but their numbers are steadily rising from less than a million in 1960 to more than 15 million today They are also a remarkably diverse population representing several ethnicities religions and languages and they enjoy higher levels of education and income than any other U S racial group Historically socioeconomic status has been a reliable predictor of political behavior So why has this fast growing American population which is doing so well economically been so little engaged in the U S political system Asian American Political Participation is the most comprehensive study to date of Asian American political behavior including such key measures as voting political donations community organizing and political protests The book examines why some groups participate while others do not why certain civic activities are deemed preferable to others and why Asian socioeconomic advantage has so far not led to increased political clout Asian American Political Participation is based on data from the authors groundbreaking 2008 National Asian American Survey of more than 5 000 Chinese Indian Vietnamese Korean Filipino and Japanese Americans The book shows that the motivations for and impediments to political participation are as diverse as the Asian American population For example native born Asians have higher rates of political participation than their immigrant counterparts particularly recent adult arrivals who were socialized outside of the United States Protest activity is the exception which tends to be higher among immigrants who maintain connections abroad and who engaged in such activity in their country of origin Surprisingly factors such as living in a new immigrant destination or in a city with an Asian American elected official do not seem to motivate political behavior neither does ethnic group solidarity Instead hate crimes and racial victimization are the factors that most motivate Asian Americans to participate politically Involvement in non political activities such as civic and religious groups also bolsters political participation Even among Asian groups socioeconomic advantage does not necessarily translate into high levels of political participation Chinese Americans for example have significantly higher levels of educational attainment than Japanese Americans but Japanese Americans are far more likely to vote and make political contributions And Vietnamese Americans with the lowest levels of education and income vote and engage in protest politics more than any other group Lawmakers tend to favor the interests of groups who actively engage the political system and groups who do not participate at high levels are likely to suffer political consequences in the future Asian American Political Participation demonstrates that understanding Asian political behavior today can have significant repercussions for Asian American political influence tomorrow Asian Americans Pyong Gap Min, 2006 Compared to many existing texts on this subject which tend to take a rather historical approach this book focuses on more contemporary Asian experiences Thus Min has provided a new tool for those of use who have looked for adequate material to teach current Asian American trends in advanced undergraduate courses in the sociology of race as well as in ethnic studies Encompassing

Asian American Studies Now Jean Yu-Wen Shen Wu, Thomas Chen, 2010-03-08. The New Chinese America Xiaojian Zhao, 2010-01-19. The 1965 Immigration Act altered the lives and outlook of Chinese Americans in fundamental ways. The New Chinese America explores the historical economic and social foundations of the Chinese American community in order to reveal the emergence of a new social hierarchy after 1965. In this detailed and comprehensive study of contemporary Chinese America Xiaojian Zhao uses class analysis to illuminate the difficulties of everyday survival for poor and undocumented immigrants and analyzes the process through which social mobility occurs. Through ethnic ties Chinese Americans have built an economy of their own in which entrepreneurs can maintain a competitive edge given their access to low cost labor workers who are shut out of the mainstream job market can find work and make a living and consumers can enjoy high quality services at a great bargain. While the growth of the ethnic economy enhances ethnic bonds by increasing mutual dependencies among different groups of Chinese Americans it also determines the limits of possibility for various individuals depending on their socioeconomic and immigration status.
