

2. Declaration and American Independence (1763-1776)

Main Facts to Remember

- 1763 marked the end of the French and Indian War – a war where the Americans and British fought against the French and Indians; the Americans and British won, but the war had a negative effect on their relationship (see next bullet point).
- After 1763 the British abandoned their policy of salutary neglect – because they felt that they had spent a lot of money on the French and Indian War and that the Americans should pay the cost; for this reason, the British put lots of new taxes on the Americans – for example, the Stamp Act, the Sugar Act, and the Tea Act.
- The American colonists thought the new British taxes were unfair because they had no one to represent them in the British government (“No taxation without representation!”).
- Eventually, the American colonists became so unhappy with the British taxes that they began to protest – some examples: the Stamp Act Congress, boycotts of British products, the Sons of Liberty, the Boston Tea Party, the First Continental Congress, the Second Continental Congress.
- The Second Continental Congress decided that America should break away from England and become an independent country; they assigned Thomas Jefferson the job of writing a document that described the reasons for American independence – this document was called the Declaration of Independence.
- The main ideas contained in the Declaration of Independence are:
 - “All men are created equal” – every human being has natural rights – rights that they are born with and which are “unalienable,” meaning they can’t be taken away (“life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness”); this idea comes from John Locke and the European Enlightenment.
 - Another Enlightenment idea contained in the Declaration is social contract – it says that people owe loyalty only to a government that acts in their best interests.
 - The Declaration says that the main job of the government is to protect people’s natural rights; if the government fails to do this, then the people have the right to “alter or abolish” (change or get rid of) that government and create a new one.
 - Lastly, the Declaration of Independence argues that the government gets its power from “the consent of the governed.” In other words, the government gets its power from the people; they must give their “consent” (permission) to be governed.
