Budget Conference Report Army Jagm:

Department of Defense Authorization for Appropriations for Fiscal Year 2016 and the Future Years Defense Program United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Armed Services, 2015 Conference Report on Bill Making Appropriations for Support of Army. United States. Congress. Senate. Committee of Conference, 1894 Defense Budget United States. General Accounting Office, 1986 Report from the Quartermaster General, Relative to Appropriations for Deficiencies in Army Expenditures, &c., &c.. United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means, 1858

Justification of the budget estimates, Army United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Military Construction Appropriations, 1986 Budgetary Pressures Created by the Army's Plans to Procure New Major Weapon Systems are Just Beginning United States. General Accounting Office, 1981 GAO reviewed new weapon system acquisition programs to determine the likely effect on the budget for the next several years of financing the procurement operation and support of the Army's new major weapon systems and identifying ways for relieving the pressure which characterized the preparation of the Army's 1982-1986 5 Year Defense Program The 1970's marked the Army's most intensive peacetime effort to modernize its forces with new weapon systems Most of the procurement of these systems became a reality in preparing the fiscal year 1982 budget With less funds available than were needed to procure the weapons in the quantities desired together with substantial cost increases the Army proposed to stretch out the production schedules of nearly all of the systems which would have resulted in higher prices and program delays Additional funds in the revised fiscal year 1982 budget alleviated this problem The systems production has been characterized by substantial cost growth stemming mainly from the actual production processes being more complex than anticipated and requiring more labor hours and machine time Much of the cost growth was due to inflation The use of optimistic inflation rates in developing cost estimates also accounts for some of the cost growth Operating and supporting the new weapon systems once they are fielded will require very large amounts of resources Since the budgetary effect of operations and support will not be felt until after the weapons are deployed these costs are not receiving as much attention as procurement costs Fielding all of the systems will seriously strain the Army's resources Most of the systems will require more skilled personnel more fuel and ammunition a greater expenditure for spare parts and will impose a logistics burden on the Army Defense Budget United States.
General Accounting Office, 1989 Army Budget United States. General Accounting Office, 1987 Army Budget, 1986

The U. S. Military's Force Structure: A Primer Congress, Congressional Budget Office (U.S.), 2016-08-16 A Detailed Military Spending Cost Analysis by the CBO to Better Inform Policymakers and the Public In this report the Congressional Budget Office CBO analyzes the structure and cost of the military from the perspective of major combat units such as Army brigades Navy aircraft carrier strike groups Marine Corps task forces and Air Force squadrons CBO allocates most of the O S budget and DoD's total number of military personnel among major combat units and their associated support units and overhead activities to provide a clearer picture of the size and cost of the military's force structure. Such information can help policymakers evaluate proposals to change the structure or budget of the armed forces and better inform the general public. Tables and Figures including illustrations of equipment, personnel, and other data are included to provide an easy method to understand this topic.
