Schier, Todd E. Eberly, 2013-07-18 Popular distrust and the entrenchment of government by professionals lie at the root of America's most pressing political problems How did U S politics get to this point Contemporary American politics got much of its shape from the transformations brought about from the 1950s to the 1980s Presidential and congressional behavior voting behavior public opinion public policy and federalism were all reconfigured during that time and many of those changes persist to this day and structure the political environment in the early twenty first century Throughout American history parties have been a reliable instrument for translating majority preferences into public policy From the 1950s to the 1980s a gradual antiparty realignment alongside the growth of professional government produced a new American political system of remarkable durability and remarkable dysfunction It is a system that is paradoxically stable despite witnessing frequent shifts in party control of the institutions of government at the state and national level Schier and Eberly's system level view of American politics demonstrates the disconnect between an increasingly polarized and partisan elite and an increasingly disaffected mass public African Land Questions, Agrarian Transitions and the State Sam Moyo, 2008 This empirically grounded study provides a critical reflection on the land question in Africa research on which tends to be tangential conceptually loose and generally inadequate It argues that the most pressing research concern must be to understand the precise nature of the African land question its land reforms and their effects on development To unravel the roots of land conflicts in Africa requires thorough understanding of the complex social and political contradictions which have ensued from colonial and post colonial land policies as well as from Africa's development and capital accumulation trajectories especially with regard to the land rights of the continent's poor. The study thus questions the capacity of emerging neo liberal economic and political regimes in Africa to deliver land reforms which address growing inequality and poverty. It equally questions the understanding of the nature of popular demands for land reforms by African states and their ability to address these demands under the current global political and economic structures dictated by neo liberalism and its narrow regime of ownership. The study invites scholars and policy makers to creatively draw on the specific historical trajectories and contemporary expression of the land and agrarian questions in Africa to enrich both theory and practice on land in Africa.
