

Problem 1 Scavenger Hunt

For this activity, you are going on a scavenger hunt with your group in search of objects. You will try to find objects in your classroom that match certain customary or metric lengths. Then you will measure those objects to see how close you got. Here's a list of what you'll need and the rules of the scavenger hunt.

What You'll Need

- You will need a ruler, yardstick, and meter stick.

Rules

- The first column of the table shows measurements in both customary and metric units. Find an object that you think has a measurement that is close to each estimated measurement.
- Next, measure that object and record the measurement in the table.
- Then, calculate the difference between the estimated measurement and actual measurement.
- After you have calculated each difference, add up all the differences for both customary and metric measurements.
- The group with the smallest difference in each category will be the scavenger hunt winner!

Revolutions in Learning and Education from India Christoph Neusiedl, 2021-02-15 This book offers an important critique of the ways in which mainstream education contributes to perpetuate an inherently unjust and exploitative Development model Instead the book proposes a new anarchistic postdevelopmental framework that goes beyond Development and schooling to ask what really makes a meaningful life Challenging the notion of Development as a win win relationship between civil society the state and the private sector the book argues that Development perpetuates a hierarchical world order and that the education system serves to reinforce and re legitimise this unequal order Drawing on real life examples of unschooling and self designed learning in India the book demonstrates that more autonomous approaches such as these can help to fundamentally challenge dominant ideas of education equality development and what it means to lead meaningful lives The interdisciplinary approach pursued in this book makes it perfect for anyone with interests across the areas of education development studies radical political theory and philosophy Methods of Teaching in Junior and Senior High School Earl Raymond
