Human Sectional Anatomy Harold Ellis,Bari M Logan,Adrian K. Dixon,2007-11-30 First published in 1991 Human

Sectional Anatomy set new standards for the quality of cadaver sections and accompanying radiological images. Now in its third edition this unsurpassed quality remains and is further enhanced by some useful new material. As with the previous editions the superb full colour cadaver sections are compared with CT and MRI images with accompanying labelled line diagrams. Many of the radiological images have been replaced with new examples taken on the most up to date equipment to ensure excellent visualisation of the anatomy. Completely new page spreads have been added to improve the book's coverage including images taken using multidetector CT technology and some beautiful 3D volume rendered CT images. The photographic material is enhanced by useful notes extended for the third edition with details of important anatomical and radiological features.

Energy and Technical Building Systems - Scientific and Technological Advances Jarek Kurnitski, Andrea Ferrantelli, 2020-01-31. Future buildings require not only energy efficiency but also proper building automation and control system functionalities in order to respond to the needs of occupants and energy grids. These development paths require a focus on occupant needs such as good indoor climate, easy operability and monitoring. Another area to be tackled is energy flexibility which is needed to make buildings responsive to the price signals of electricity grids with increasing amounts of fluctuating renewable energy generation installed both in central grids and at building sites. This Special Issue is dedicated to HVAC systems, load shifting, indoor climate and energy and ventilation performance analyses in buildings. All these topics are important for improving the energy performance of new and renovated buildings within the roadmap of low energy and nearly zero energy buildings. To improve energy performance and at the same time occupant comfort and wellbeing, new technical solutions are required. Occupancy patterns and recognition, intelligent building management, demand response and performance of heating, cooling and ventilation systems are some common keywords in the articles of this Special Issue contributing to future highly performing buildings with reliable operation.

Current Index to Journals in Education, 2002. Human Evolutionary Biology Michael P. Muehlenbein, 2010-07-29. Wide ranging and inclusive, this text provides an invaluable review of an expansive selection of topics in human evolution, variation and adaptability for professionals and students in biological anthropology, evolutionary biology, medical sciences and psychology. The chapters are organized around four broad themes with sections devoted to phenotypic and genetic variation within and between human populations, reproductive physiology and behavior, growth and development and human health from evolutionary and ecological perspectives. An introductory section provides readers with the historical, theoretical and methodological foundations needed to understand the more complex ideas presented later. Two hundred discussion questions provide starting points for class debate and assignments to test student understanding.
