Finnegan, 2016-02-17 The essays in this collection explore a number of significant questions regarding the terms radical and radicalism in early modern English contexts They investigate whether we can speak of a radical tradition and whether radicalism was a local national or transnational phenomenon In so doing this volume examines the exchange of ideas and texts in the history of supposedly radical events ideologies and movements or moments Once at the cutting edge of academic debate radicalism had until very recently fallen prey to historiographical trends as scholars increasingly turned their attention to more mainstream experiences or reactionary forces While acknowledging the importance of those perspectives Varieties of seventeenth and early eighteenth century English radicalism in context offers a reconsideration of the place of radicalism within the early modern period It sets out to examine the subject in original and exciting ways by adopting distinctively new and broader perspectives Among the crucial issues addressed are problems of definition and how meanings can evolve context print culture language and interpretative techniques literary forms and rhetorical strategies that conveyed or deliberately disguised subversive meanings and the existence of a single continuous English radical tradition Taken together the essays in this collection offer a timely reassessment of the subject reflecting the latest research on the theme of seventeenth century English radicalism as well as offering some indications of the phenomenon s transnational contexts Indeed there is a sense here of the complexity and variety of the subject although much work still remains to be done on radicals and radicalism both in early modern England and especially beyond Postcolonial Representations of Women Rachel Bailey Jones, 2011-06-11 In this accessible combination of post colonial theory feminism and pedagogy the author advocates using subversive and contemporary artistic representations of women to remodel traditional stereotypes in education It is in this key sector that values and norms are molded and prejudice kept at bay yet the legacy of colonialism continues to pervade official education received in classrooms as well as unofficial education ingested via popular culture and the media The result is a variety of distorted images of women and gender in which women appear as two dimensional stereotypes The text analyzes both current and historical colonial representations of women in a pedagogical context In doing so it seeks to recast our conception of what difference is challenging historical patriarchal gender relations with their stereotypical representations that continue to marginalize minority populations in the first world and billions of women elsewhere These distorted images the book argues can be subverted using the semiology provided by postcolonialism and transnational feminism and the work of contemporary artists who rethink and recontextualize the visual codes of colonialism These resistive images created by women who challenge and subvert patriarchal modes of representation can be used to create educational environments that provide an alternative view of women of non western origin

Decolonisation of Materialities or Materialisation of (Re-)Colonisation

Nhemachena, Artwell, Kangira, Jairos, 2017-11-28 Contemporary scholarly discourses about decolonising materialities are taking two noticeable trajectories the first trajectory privileges establishing connections relationships and associations between human beings and nature The second trajectory privileges restoration restitution reparations for colonial dispossessions lootings and disinheritance While the first trajectory presupposes that colonialism was merely about separation alienation and disconnections between human beings and nature the second trajectory stresses the colonialists dispossession disinheritance and privations of Africans Drawing on contemporary discourses about materialities in relation to semiotics non representationalism rhetoric ecocriticism territorialisation deterritorialisation and reterritorialisation translation animism science and technology studies this book teases out the intellectually rutted terrain of African materialities. It argues that in a world of increasing impoverishment the significance of materialities cannot be overemphasised more so for the continent of Africa where impoverishment materialises in the midst of resource opulence. The book is a pacesetter in no holds barred interrogation of African materialities.
