Wielhouwer, 2014-08-15 Proper doctrine for close support of American ground forces by airpower has been a tumultuous issue since the first days of combat aircraft Air and ground leaders struggled with interservice rivalry parochialism employment paradigms and technological roadblocks while seeking the optimum balance of missions given the unique speed range and flexibility of aircraft Neither ground force concepts of airpower as self defense and extended organic artillery nor air force theories focused on command of the air and strategic attack fit the middle ground of close air support CAS leaving a doctrinal void prior to American combat in World War II This thesis focuses on the critical period from September 1939 through the doctrinal and practical crucible of North Africa which eventually produced a resoundingly successful system Theoretical and practical changes in organization and command airpower roles and the tactical air control system are examined with subarea focus on cooperation and communications technology Upon examination discerning leadership able to transcend earlier compromises and failures emerges as the essential element for CAS success during the war While many airpower concepts proved valid air ground cooperation through liaison proved indispensable a lesson repeated even today Information Letter , 1945 Ideas, Concepts, Doctrine Robert Frank Futrell, 1974
