Osteosyntheses Reiner Labitzke,2000 In bone surgery it is essential to compress fractures interfragmentarily in order to make them resistant to the tensile force of muscles and the force resulting from acceleration and deceleration This can be best achieved by the use of cable tension bands as a traction mechanism The cable tension band is in terms of stability of fractures far superior to the conventional rigid cerclage wire which has been widely used in osteosynthesis for over 100 years The author explains the biomechanics of the tension band in detail Theoretical findings are confirmed by clinical test results All osteosynthetic techniques which can be carried out with cables are described giving details of operation instructions Errors and risks are always pointed out A reference book and operative manual at a time Title List of Documents

And Relations Tomihisa Kamada,1989-09-01 Pictorial representations are very useful for humans to understand complicated relations or structures This is the reason that the user interface of information systems is strongly required to visualize many kinds of information in a wide variety of graphical forms At present however only some very specialized visualization techniques have been developed probably because the generality in the visualization has not been appreciated correctly This book presents a visualization framework for translating abstract objects and relations typically represented in textual forms into pictorial representations and describes a general visualization interface based on this framework In the framework abstract objects and relations are mapped to graphical objects and relations by user defined mapping rules The declarative nature of the mapping rules provides users with more global and more flexible layout capabilities Also presented is an algorithm for drawing general undirected graphs which can be used to visualize network structures as network diagrams The proposed visualization framework is shown to be general enough to be applied to various types of visualization problems such as the visualization of semantics of natural language sentences the generation of diagrams for data structures and program structures and the drawing of database schema Examples of all these problems are shown with actual mapping rules and pictorial results
