Chapter 2 – Polar Covalent Bonds; Acids and Bases

Chapter Outline

I. Polar covalent bonds (Sections 2.1–2.3).

A. Electronegativity (Section 2.1).

1. Although some bonds are totally ionic and some are totally covalent, most chemical bonds are polar covalent bonds.
 - a. In these bonds, electrons are attracted to one atom more than to the other atom.
2. Bond polarity is due to differences in electronegativity (EN).
 - a. Elements on the right side of the periodic table are more electronegative than elements on the left side.
 - b. Carbon has an EN of 2.5.
 - c. Elements with $EN > 2.5$ are more electronegative than carbon.
 - d. Elements with $EN < 2.5$ are less electronegative than carbon.
3. The difference in EN between two elements can be used to predict the polarity of a bond.
 - a. If $\Delta EN < 0.4$, a bond is nonpolar covalent.
 - b. If ΔEN is between 0.4 and 2.0, a bond is polar covalent.
 - c. If $\Delta EN > 2.0$, a bond is ionic.
 - d. The symbols δ^+ and δ^- are used to indicate partial charges.
 - e. A crossed arrow is used to indicate bond polarity.
 - i. The tail of the arrow is electron-poor, and the head of the arrow is electron-rich.
4. Electrostatic potential maps are also used to show electron-rich (red) and electron-poor (blue) regions of molecules.
5. An inductive effect is an atom's ability to polarize a bond.

B. Dipole moment (Section 2.2).

1. Dipole moment is the measure of a molecule's overall polarity.
2. Dipole moment (μ) = $Q \times r$, where Q = charge and r = distance between charges.
 - a. Dipole moment is measured in debyes (D).
3. Dipole moment can be used to measure charge separation.
4. Water and ammonia have large values of D; methane and ethane have $D = 0$.

C. Formal charge (Section 2.3).

1. Formal charge (FC) indicates electron "ownership" in a molecule.
2.

Grounded Vision William H. Major, 2011-04-13 In Grounded Vision William Major puts contemporary agrarian thinking into a conciliatory and productive dialogue with academic criticism He argues that the lack of participation in academic discussions means a loss to both agrarians and academics since agrarian thought can enrich other ongoing discussions on topics such as ecocriticism postmodernism feminism work studies and politics especially in light of the recent upsurge in grassroots cultural and environmental activities critical of modernity such as the sustainable agriculture and slow food movements

Wild Immunology—The Answers Are Out There Gregory M. Woods, Andrew S. Flies, 2019-03-20 Go into partnership with nature she does more than half the work and asks none of the fee Martin H Fisher Nature has undertaken an immense amount of work throughout evolution The evolutionary process has provided a power of information that can address key questions such as Which immune molecules and pathways are conserved across species Which molecules and pathways are exploited by pathogens to cause disease What methods can be broadly used or readily adapted for wild immunology How does co infection and exposure to a dynamic environment affect immunity Section 1 addresses these questions through an evolutionary approach Laboratory mice have been instrumental in dissecting the nuances of the immune system The first paper investigates the immunology of wild mice and reviews how evolution and ecology sculpt differences in the immune responses of wild mice and laboratory mice A better understanding of wild immunology is required and sets the scene for the subsequent papers Although nature doesn't ask for a fee it is appropriate that nature is repaid in one form or another The translational theme of the second section incorporates papers that translate wild immunology back to nature But any non human non laboratory mouse research environment is hindered by a lack of research tools hence the underlying theme throughout the second section Physiological resource allocation is carefully balanced according to the most important needs of the body Tissue homeostasis can involve trade offs between energy requirements of the host and compensatory mechanisms to respond to infection The third section comprises a collection of papers that employ novel strategies to understand how the immune system is compensated under challenging physiological situations Technology has provided substantial advances in understanding the immune system at cellular and molecular levels The specificity of these tools e g monoclonal antibodies often limits the study to a specific species or strain A consequence of similar genetic sequences or cross reactivity is that the technology can be adapted to wild species Section 4 provides two examples of probing wild immunology by adapting technology developed for laboratory species
