Bybee,Paul J. Hopper,2001-10-15 A mainstay of functional linguistics has been the claim that linguistic elements and patterns that are frequently used in discourse become conventionalized as grammar This book addresses the two issues that are basic to this claim first the question of what types of elements are frequently used in discourse and second the question of how frequency of use affects cognitive representations Reporting on evidence from natural conversation diachronic change variability child language acquisition and psycholinguistic experimentation the original articles in this book support two major principles First the content of people s interactions consists of a preponderance of subjective evaluative statements dominated by the use of pronouns copulas and intransitive clauses Second the frequency with which certain items and strings of items are used has a profound influence on the way language is broken up into chunks in memory storage the way such chunks are related to other stored material and the ease with which they are accessed to produce new utterances K-12 STEM Education in Urban Learning Environments Wendt, Jillian L.,Apugo, Danielle L.,2019-04-12 This title is an IGI Global Core Reference for 2019 as it provides the timeliest trending research around overcoming challenges within the urban educational system Featuring real world solutions and comprehensive coverage on teacher professional development racial microaggressions STEM and diversity in elementary and secondary education this publication is ideal for teachers faculty administrators policymakers and educational researchers K 12 STEM Education in Urban Learning Environments provides emerging research on the challenges and barriers of STEM education in urban environments and how to move forward in overcoming these challenges and barriers to provide equitable education for all K 12 students Featuring coverage on a broad range of topics such as teacher preparation programming gender and racial barriers and more this publication is ideally designed for teachers faculty administrators policymakers researchers and scholars Books in Print Supplement ,2002 A Companion to Linguistic Anthropology Alessandro Duranti,2008-04-15 A Companion to Linguistic Anthropology provides a series of in depth explorations of key concepts and approaches by some of the scholars whose work constitutes the theoretical and methodological foundations of the contemporary study of language as culture Provides a definitive overview of the field of linguistic anthropology comprised of original contributions by leading scholars in the field Summarizes past and contemporary research across the field and is intended to spur students and scholars to pursue new paths in the coming decades Includes a comprehensive bibliography of over 2000 entries designed as a resource for anyone seeking a guide to the literature of linguistic anthropology Awareness Matters Claudia Finkbeiner,Agneta M.-L.Svalberg,2016-01-22 This collection argues that being aware of and reflecting on language form and language use is a powerful tool not only in language learning but also in wider society It adopts an interdisciplinary

Pharmacogenomics is the study of how variation in the human genome impacts drug response in patients It is a major driving force of personalized medicine in which drug choice and dosing decisions are informed by individual information such as DNA genotype The field of pharmacogenomics is in an era of explosive growth massive amounts of data are being collected and knowledge discovered which promises to push forward the reality of individualized clinical care However this large amount of data is dispersed in many journals in the scientific literature and pharmacogenomic findings are discussed in a variety of non standardized ways It is thus challenging to identify important associations between drugs and molecular entities particularly genes and gene variants Thus these critical connections are not easily available to investigators or clinicians who wish to survey the state of knowledge for any particular gene drug disease or variant Manual efforts have attempted to catalog this information however the rapid expansion of pharmacogenomic literature has made this approach infeasible Natural Language Processing and text mining techniques allow us to convert free style text to a computable searchable format in which pharmacogenomic concepts such as genes drugs polymorphisms and diseases are identified and important links between these concepts are recorded My dissertation describes novel computational methods to extract and predict pharmacogenomic relationships from text In one project we extract pharmacogenomic relationships from the primary literature using text mining We process information at the fine grained sentence level using full text when available In a second project we investigate the use of these extracted relationships in place of manually curated relationships as input into an algorithm that predicts pharmacogenes for a drug of interest We show that for this application we can perform as well with text mined relationships as with manually curated information This approach holds great promise as it is cheaper faster and more scalable than manual curation Our method provides us with interesting drug gene relationship predictions that warrant further experimental investigation In the third project we describe knowledge inference in the context of pharmacogenomic relationships Using cutting edge natural language processing tools and automated reasoning we create a rich semantic network of 40 000 pharmacogenomic relationships distilled from 17 million Medline abstracts This network connects over 200 entity types with clear semantics using more than 70 unique types of relationships We use this network to create collections of precise and specific types of knowledge and infer relationships not stated explicitly in the text but rather inferred from the large number of related sentences found in the literature This is exciting because it demonstrates that we are able to overcome the heterogeneity of written language and infer the correct semantics of the relationship described by authors Finally we can use this network to identify conflicting facts described in the literature to study change in language use over time and to predict drug drug interactions These achievements provide us with new ways of interacting with the literature and the knowledge embedded within it and help ensure that we do not bury the knowledge embodied in the publications but rather connect the often fragmented and disconnected pieces of knowledge spread across millions of articles in hundreds of journals We are thereby brought one step closer to the realization of personalized medicine and ensure that as scientists we continue to build on the knowledge discovered by past generations and truly to stand on the shoulders of giants
