

Optics - The Study of Light

Refraction

Light refracts when passing between two substances at an angle.

Light does not bend as glass that is not yet at an angle. (straight through)

Light bends as it goes from air into glass at an angle. (refracting the light in towards the edge)

The light bends the closer the angle is towards the edge.

Reflection

Light reflects when it bounces off a surface.

Normal - an imaginary line 90° perpendicular to a surface.

Angle of Incidence - the angle between the incident ray and the normal.

Angle of Reflection - the angle between the reflected ray and the normal.

Focus

Many types of mirrors focus light waves at a single point (focal point). This is known as the focal point or focus.

Convex Mirrors

Mirrors and lenses can make objects look bigger or smaller. They can also change the direction light waves travel through them. Most of what they have these effects is refraction.

Concave vs. Convex

The surface is curved out, not bending in. (diverging) focus.

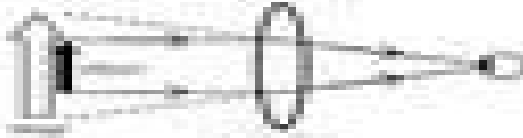

The surface is curved in, bending in. (converging) focused, or focus.

Lenses

Concave and convex lenses depend on how light enters them. If a convex lens refracts light at a convex surface, it's a converging lens.

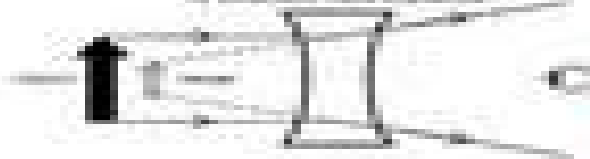

Concave lenses are converging, so the light bending makes them focus towards one surface.

A convex lens refracts light.

A convex lens is converging. The light rays focus together.

A concave lens refracts light.

A concave lens is diverging. The light rays spread apart.

convex converging lens

Concave vs. Convex

Optical Systems

Magnifying and other optical systems use one or more lenses to help us see things. They can make things look bigger or smaller, and they can change the direction light waves travel.

Optical systems affect how we see things. They can make things look bigger or smaller.

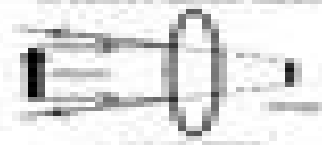

Mirrors

Mirrors work by reflection. The light bounces off the surface and goes back in the same direction. Mirrors can make things look bigger or smaller.

Ex. the image looks 20% larger than the object. (the object is the object).

Ex. the image looks 20% smaller than the object. (the object is the object).

A convex mirror focuses light.

A convex mirror is diverging.

A concave mirror focuses light.

A concave mirror is converging.
