

AMERICAN AIRLINES ELECTRONIC RESERVATIONS PROCESSING SYSTEM

How push-buttons-to-computers speed air travel reservations...

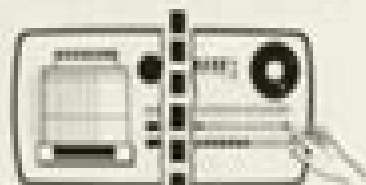

1 Passenger requests a seat on an airline by telephone or in person from any of the 1,000 American Airlines agent offices serving 50 states.

2 Agent finds out which seats are available on all flights for the desired day by pressing buttons that tell her her own desk console.

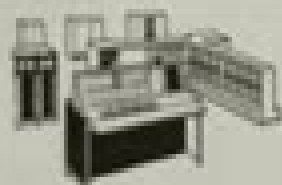

3... which it then sends by electronic flow through the Computing Center to the New York office to search computer memory as to seats already reserved either all available.

4 Seat availability instant sent to agent from Computing Center. Customer has complete and up-to-date reservation status from all seats open on all flights for destination and day desired.

5 Passenger selects most suitable flight by "pressing" agent console "OFF" button.

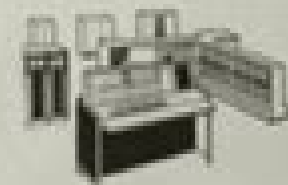

6... and then instructs the Computing Center to recompute.

7 Computer instantly sets its automatically printing out an agent's printed list of seats - flight number, date, number of passengers, fare class, point and departure and arrival times.

8 Agent is free to enter additional information to computer's memory - flying in her private box, board the passenger's name, telephone number and any other information such as car rental or porter party destination, etc.

9 Computer automatically checks and confirms the reservation with the computer, and shows it is holding as part of the passenger's flight with seat price, charges or schedule.

Central Processing Unit

In addition to handling the passenger's reservation, the new IBM system also:

Answers requests for space from other airlines.

Advises agents to record passengers to pick up tickets.

Monitors and processes passengers making bids for substituted flights.

Supplies fare quotations.

Supplies information on arrival and departure times.

Reminds agents to advise scheduled passengers of any flight changes.
