

Skin and Body Membranes

Key

Body membranes, which cover body surfaces, line its cavities, and form protective sheets around organs, fall into two major categories. These are epithelial membranes (skin epidermis, mucosae, and serosae) and the connective tissue synovial membranes.

Topics for review in this chapter include a comparison of structure and function of various membranes, anatomical characteristics of the skin (composed of the connective tissue dermis and the epidermis) and its derivatives, and the manner in which the skin responds to both internal and external stimuli to protect the body.

CLASSIFICATION OF BODY MEMBRANES

1. Complete the following table relating to body membranes. Enter your responses in the areas left blank.

Membrane	Tissue type (epithelial/connective)	Common locations	Functions
Mucous	Connective	Cavities opening to outside world	Protection
Serous	Connective	Cavities not open to outside world	anchoring organs- providing ability to move side past each other
Cutaneous	Epithelial	Skin	Protection from outside world
Synovial	Connective	Joints	Produce synovial fluid- lubricate joints

Ghaemmaghami,Pinar Zorlutuna,2019-05-15 Adverse immune reactions to biomaterials are important bottlenecks for translation of novel biomaterials for clinical use Moreover recent advances in highthrough put biomaterial discovery and synthetic biology while providing exciting new views also significantly increases potential risks related to the in vivo reactions to these new materials. For example, the novel materials might have unintended biological activities due to their natural building blocks. In this perspective, the biomaterial field needs: i) better understanding of cell biomaterial interactions at systems level; ii) development of new analysis and testing tools for advanced risk assessment; iii) tools and technologies for modulating reactions to biomaterials; and iv) advanced in vitro models for understanding and testing of reactions to biomaterials. In the following collection of articles, you will find examples of such systems together with comprehensive reviews of current developments in in vitro model systems. The collection also contains articles that elucidate the immune reaction to biomaterials in vitro and in vivo.
