Making Math Connections Hope Martin, 2006-07-27 Making Math Connections integrates mathematics into a variety of subject areas and real life settings providing motivation for students to want to learn the material being presented The book also uses a variety of activities to promote learning for students with different interests and learning styles Steven P Isaak Mathematics Teacher Advanced Technologies Academy Las Vegas NV Spark student learning by making an authentic connection between math and real life experiences Students often fail to make the connection between school math and their everyday lives becoming passive recipients of isolated memorized rules and formulas This remarkable new resource will help students become active problem solvers who see mathematics as a meaningful tool that can be used outside the classroom Hope Martin applies more than 40 years of teaching experience to developing a myriad of high interest meaningful math investigations Using a teacher friendly format she shows educators how to integrate into the math curriculum engaging everyday topics such as forensics natural disasters tessellations the stock market and literature This project based resource encourages cooperative interactive learning experiences that not only help students make connections between various math skills but also make important connections to the real world Aligned to NCTM standards these mathematical applications are broken down into complete units focusing on different topics Each chapter includes Background information on the topic Step by step procedures for math investigations Assessment strategies Journal questions Reproducible worksheets Additional related readings and Internet Web sites By increasing their awareness of meaningful everyday applications students will learn to use math as an essential tool in their daily lives ENC Focus ,2001 Making Connections ,2006-01-01 In this book comparisons are made between the practices of classrooms in a variety of different school systems around the world The abiding challenge for classroom research is the realization of structure in diversity The structure in this case takes the form of patterns of participation regularities in the social practices of mathematics classrooms The expansion of our field of view to include international rather than just local classrooms increases the diversity and heightens the challenge of the search for structure while increasing the significance of any structures once found In particular this book reports on the use of lesson events as an entry point for the analysis of lesson structure International research offers opportunities to study settings and characteristics untenable in the researcher s local situation Importantly international comparative studies can reveal possibilities for practice that would go unrecognized within the established norms of educational practice of one country or one culture Our capacity to conceive of alternatives to our current practice is constrained by deep rooted assumptions reflecting cultural and societal values that we lack the perspective to question The comparisons made possible by international research facilitate our identification and interrogation of these assumptions Such interrogation opens up possibilities for innovation that might not otherwise be identified expanding the repertoire of mathematics teachers internationally and providing the basis for theory development Mathematics for the Life Sciences Erin N. Bodine, Suzanne

Lenhart, Louis J. Gross, 2014-08-17 An accessible undergraduate textbook on the essential math concepts used in the life sciences The life sciences deal with a vast array of problems at different spatial temporal and organizational scales The mathematics necessary to describe model and analyze these problems is similarly diverse incorporating quantitative techniques that are rarely taught in standard undergraduate courses This textbook provides an accessible introduction to these critical mathematical concepts linking them to biological observation and theory while also presenting the computational tools needed to address problems not readily investigated using mathematics alone Proven in the classroom and requiring only a background in high school math Mathematics for the Life Sciences doesn't just focus on calculus as do most other textbooks on the subject It covers deterministic methods and those that incorporate uncertainty problems in discrete and continuous time probability graphing and data analysis matrix modeling difference equations differential equations and much more The book uses MATLAB throughout explaining how to use it write code and connect models to data in examples chosen from across the life sciences Provides undergraduate life science students with a succinct overview of major mathematical concepts that are essential for modern biology Covers all the major quantitative concepts that national reports have identified as the ideal components of an entry level course for life science students Provides good background for the MCAT which now includes data based and statistical reasoning Explicitly links data and math modeling Includes end of chapter homework problems end of unit student projects and select answers to homework problems Uses MATLAB throughout and MATLAB m files with an R supplement are available online Prepares students to read with comprehension the growing quantitative literature across the life sciences A solutions manual for professors and an illustration package is available

Research Connections Abra Brisbin, Karen Lange, Erin McNicholas, Emilie Purvine, 2025-02-18 What does math research really look like Which subfield is right for me Do people like me go to graduate school and succeed This book provides students a sneak preview of math research in a variety of subfields Each chapter features the work of a different mathematician along with enough background material for an advanced undergraduate or early graduate student to understand the key ideas and get a sense for the styles of thinking involved in each subfield Each chapter is prefaced by a short biography of the mathematician who wrote the chapter all people connected to the Carleton College Summer Math Program for Women providing advice and examples of paths from undergraduate education through graduate school and beyond This book provides a source of ideas and starting points for in class projects independent studies and student talks as well as supplementary reading in courses The profiles of early career mathematicians and statisticians at the beginning of each chapter are valuable as an advising resource for students considering graduate school or to show students a diverse view of modern mathematicians in a Math for Liberal Arts style course
