How Did I Score Compared to Others?

Your school rank represents your place among the students at the same school that took the test.

Your participant rank represents your place among the total students that took the test.

Will My Scores Change and Why?

Tests are not exact measures, and many factors can affect your score. After all, no two days are the same, and if you took the SAT once a week for a month, your scores would change.

That's why it helps to think of your true score as a range from a few points below to a few points above the score listed. Score ranges show how your score can change with repeated testing, assuming your skill level remains the same.

Usually, scores for Evidence-Based Reading and Writing and for Math fall in a range of roughly 30 to 40 points above or below your reported score.

Total: Your score is 40 points.

Section: Your score is 30 points.

Test Score and Cross-Test Score:
Your score is 2 points.

Subscore: Your score is 2 points.

Am I on track to be ready for college?

You'll see a benchmark score for each section of the SAT. Benchmarks show your college readiness. The Evidence-Based Reading and Writing benchmark is 480 while the Math benchmark is 530. This means if you score at or above the benchmark, you're on track to be ready for college when you graduate high school. If you score below the benchmark, you can still get back on track by focusing on areas where you didn't perform well. Use the detailed feedback in your online score report to see which skills you need to work on most.
