

STATISTICS

Paper 4040/12
Paper 1

Key messages

Statistics is a practical subject, distinct from Mathematics, that is applied to a wide variety of real life situations. A candidate should read carefully, and understand, the situation described in a question in order to be able to produce the best possible answer.

A candidate should always be aware of whether or not the answer they have obtained to a question is possible and reasonable. If it is not, the work should be reviewed to find the error.

A question should always be read carefully so that the information that is given, and the task to be carried out, are both clearly understood and used properly.

General comments

The overall standard of work involving calculations of a routine nature was good. Some candidates also demonstrated sound understanding in interpreting the results of calculations. Others struggled to relate their findings to the practical situation in some questions.

It has been stressed repeatedly in these reports that a student of Statistics ought to realise when a numerical answer is reasonable for a particular practical situation. If it is obviously unreasonable, or even impossible, the work leading to it should be reviewed to find the mistake. Candidates need to appreciate that Statistics is not a form of pure mathematics devoid of practical relevance. For example, in finding the average length of an appointment at a dentist's surgery (see Question 4 below) it should have been obvious that the answer could not possibly be several thousand minutes. In finding the number of passes in a subject at a school (see Question 7 below) it should have been obvious that the number of passes could not possibly have been greater than the number of pupils taking the subject.

There was evidence on this paper of candidates either not reading carefully enough, or ignoring, information given in the question (see Question 9 and Question 11 below).
