The Neurological Basis of Learning, Development and Discovery Anton E. Lawson, 2006-04-11 A goal of mine ever since becoming an educational researcher has been to help construct a sound theory to guide instructional practice For far too long educational practice has suffered because we have lacked firm instructional guidelines which in my view should be based on sound psychological theory which in turn should be based on sound neurological theory In other words teachers need to know how to teach and that how to teach should be based solidly on how people learn and how their brains function As you will see in this book my answer to the question of how people learn is that we all learn by spontaneously generating and testing ideas Idea generating involves analogies and testing requires comparing predicted consequences with actual consequences We learn this way because the brain is essentially an idea generating and testing machine But there is more to it than this The very process of generating and testing ideas results not only in the construction of ideas that work i e the learning of useful declarative knowledge but also in improved skill in learning i e the development of improved procedural knowledge Skills-Based Health Education Mary Connolly, 2018-08-21 The Second Edition of Skills Based Health Education provides pre service and practicing teachers with the pedagogical foundation and tools to develop a comprehensive PreK 12 health education program using the National Health Education Standards It takes each standard by grade span provides scenarios based on research to explain the skill and then provides a step by step approach to planning assessment and instruction Early chapters connect skills based health education to coordinated school health and the national initiatives of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Healthy People 2020 The Whole Child and 21st Century Skills The remaining chapters provide guidance to plan implement and assess performance tasks Readers are shown how to establish student needs select content and skill performance indicators to meet those needs and plan and implement assessment and instructions
