 - John the Savage

Bernard Marx

Bernard Marx is a character who seems out of place in his society. Being an Alpha male, he has certain expectations to fulfil with both his actions and his physical characteristics, however, he fails to meet them. This makes us believe that he is the central character of this dystopian society – an outcast who will rebel against and expose the true nature of the Brave New World. However, as we soon realise, it is John the Savage who becomes this central character after Bernard's morals overtaken by selfishness. Huxley uses personification in "...what would it be like if I could, if I were free—not enslaved by my conditioning" to emphasise Bernard's open-minded thinking to the concept of freedom. The word 'enslaved' gives negative connotations to how conditioning affects the different people. This effectively questions the process of conditioning and leaves readers wondering if it is really a utopian concept of just a method of control.

topics from the existence of God to the existence of hell from women's ordination to Marian devotion from assisted suicide to transgenderism In Cross Examined Fr Carter Griffin begins each discussion not with Catholic teaching but rather with its most common objections Articulating these objections serves several purposes First it helps Catholics to respect those who do not share their beliefs by identifying intelligent grounds for disagreement Pointing out objections also helps believers respond more persuasively in discussions with non Catholic friends Perhaps most importantly knowing the common objects instills confidence that the Church is committed to the truth and unafraid to engage with those who dispute her teaching After identifying principal objections each discussion continues with a brief summary of relevant Catholic teaching and then responds to each objection in turn In our shrill age that seems ever less capable of rational discourse the method used in Cross Examined can offer a way to remain faithful to our beliefs while acknowledging respecting and responding to alternative points of view
