

Mathematical Induction

The principle of mathematical induction is a method for proving that a statement is true for all natural numbers. It consists of two steps: the base case and the inductive step. The base case is the statement being proved for the smallest natural number, usually 1. The inductive step is the statement being proved for a general natural number n , assuming it is true for $n-1$. If both steps are proved, then the statement is true for all natural numbers.

For example, to prove that the sum of the first n natural numbers is $\frac{n(n+1)}{2}$, we first prove the base case for $n=1$. The sum of the first 1 natural number is 1, and $\frac{1(1+1)}{2} = 1$, so the base case is true. Next, we prove the inductive step. Assume the statement is true for $n-1$, so the sum of the first $n-1$ natural numbers is $\frac{(n-1)n}{2}$. Then the sum of the first n natural numbers is $\frac{(n-1)n}{2} + n = \frac{n(n+1)}{2}$, so the inductive step is true. Therefore, the statement is true for all natural numbers n .

Mathematical induction is a powerful tool for proving statements about natural numbers. It is often used in number theory, algebra, and combinatorics. The key to using induction is to clearly state the statement being proved and to carefully prove both the base case and the inductive step.
